THE MARINE CORPS

THE sun never sets, the saying goes, on the British flag—nor does it set on the anchor and globe of the Marine Corps, for the officers and men of the corps may be found in every part of the world.

Doubling of the corps from 18,000 men in 1939 to 38,600 men today, and now its further expansion with calling to duty of 6,000 Reserves, have not materially increased dispersion of the Marine Corps, for the Service already was pretty much in every corner of the globe. But the increases have made it possible to reinforce many of the important detachments.

Among the new fields of action of the Marines during the past few months may be counted Alaska, and soon the blue uniform will be seen in the many island bases leased from Great Britain, and perhaps in Pacific island bases which the Navy is seeking to acquire.

Indicative of the extent to which the corps is dispersed is the fact that Navy facility guards, legation guards, house-keeping units and the like, aggregate about 16,000 of the 38,000 men of the corps—the largest single group. The next largest group is the Fleet Marine Force—the striking expeditionary force—which numbers about 13,000 men, including 2,000 in the aviation branch. To this number will be added most of the 5,500 men now undergoing recruit training. Aboard vessels of the Navy is another group of 3,400 to 3,500 men.

The Fleet Marine Force at present has its headquarters at San Diego, Calif., where the 2nd Brigade is also stationed. The permanent station of the 1st Brigade is Quantico, Va., but most of the personnel are now in training at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Also a part of the FMF are four defense battalions, two of which are stationed at San Diego, one at Honolulu and one at Parris Island. Two additional defense battalions are to be organized in the near future.

The 1st Brigade, FMF, consists of a headquarters company, part of the 1st Engineer Battalion, the 1st Chemical Company, the 1st and 3rd Tank Companies, the 1st Transport Company, the 1st Guard Company, the 1st Service Company, the 5th Marines (a three-battalion infantry regiment), the 1st Battalion of the 11th Marines (75-mm pack howitzer unit) and the 1st Medical Battalion. The brigade is shortly to be expanded by completion of the engineer battalion, organization of the 1st Signal Company, addition of an additional battalion to the 11th Marines, and creation of a new infantry regiment, the 7th Marines. Ultimately, a third infantry regiment will be added to the brigade, and it will then be organized as a triangular division, similar in most respects to the nine triangular divisions of the Regular Army.

The 2nd Brigade at San Diego is nearly a counterpart of the 1st Brigade. It consists of a headquarters company, part of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, the 2nd Transport Company, the 2nd Chemical Company, the 2nd Signal Company, the 2nd Service Company, the 4th Tank Com-

Survey School Needs Near Army Stations

In response to a resolution introduced by Senator Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, and approved by the Senate, Secretary of War Stimson this week reported that a study has been ordered to determine the school needs in and around military establishments. The resolution requested such data from both the War and Navy Departments with a view of deciding whether or not Federal funds should be appropriated to provide educational facilities for service children and the children of civilian defense workers.

Secretary Stimson submitted to Senator Walsh a list of proposed projects for Presidential allocation under Public Number 761 (Housing bill). "Certain expansions to these projects as well as the initiation of new projects under Public No. 849 are now under consideration by the War Department," Secretary Stimson said.

"The requested study and investigation," the Secretary stated, "will necessitate a survey of conditions at each of the stations or establishments concerned as well as the securing of cooperative advice from the Office of Education in the Department of Interior."

"Steps have been taken to accomplish this and report with accompanying recommendations will be furnished the Senate at the earliest practicable date."

The list of defense housing projects submitted by Secretary Stimson included more than 13,000 sets of quarters of which 8,635 were to meet permanent requirements for non-commissioned officers of the first three grades, 2,315 to meet temporary requirements for non-commissioned officers of the first three grades; and the balance, of 2,650 for civilian personnel employed on the posts.

The list follows:

The list of housing projects submitted by Secretary Stimson was as follows:

(Notes: Except where the name of the post is followed by a dagger (†), the proposed housing will be constructed off the post. All quarters for enlisted men are classified as of a $15 to $30 rental value and are to be occupied on commutation. Quarters for civilian employees are to rent for from $20 to $40. National Guard Pay

The Comptroller General has further liberalized his decisions concerning the application of the $21 a month rate to enlisted men of the National Guard. Under earlier rulings, it is recalled, the Comptroller General held that even though an enlisted man of the National Guard was promoted higher than the 7th pay grade prior to his induction into Federal Service, he would not be entitled to any more than $21 a month until he had completed a total of four months service.

However, under a new interpretation the Comptroller now holds that "as to enlisted men of the National Guard promoted prior to induction they will be entitled to receive the base pay of their grade in the National Guard when inducted irrespective of the length of service."

Temporary Promotion of Reserves

The following provisions to govern the temporary promotion of 1st and 2nd lieutenants of the Officers' Reserve Corps, who were on extended active duty on 9 Sept. and who are still on extended active duty were announced this week:

"a. Reserve 1st lieutenants who had completed at least three years of extended active duty with the Regular Army on 9 Sept. 1940, will be promoted in a temporary status to the grade of captain, provided they are not disqualified for such temporary promotion by the provisions of paragraph 1 d below.

"b. Reserve 2d lieutenants who had completed at least one year of extended active duty with the Regular Army on 9 Sept. 1940, will be promoted in a temporary status to the grade of 1st lieutenant, provided they are not disqualified for such temporary promotion by the provisions of paragraph 1 d below.

"c. For the purpose of computing extended active duty with the Regular Army, as prescribed in paragraphs 1 a and b above, active duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps will not be considered.

"d. Only those Reserve officers of the lieutenant grades whose service, while on extended active duty, warrants temporary promotion to the next higher grade will be promoted.

"2. Each army, corps area and department commander, each chief of arm or service, and each commander of an exempted station not under control of a chief of arm or service will, as to Reserve lieutenants now on extended active duty under his jurisdiction, submit to The Adjutant General, without delay, the names of those lieutenants, eligible under the provisions of subparagraphs 1 a, b, and c above for temporary promotion, whom he recommends as qualified for promotion under the provisions of subparagraph 1 d above.

"3. Temporary promotion for Reserve lieutenants will be confined, until otherwise directed by the War Department, to that group of individuals designated as eligible and qualified for temporary promotion in paragraph 1 above."

To Appoint More Generals

Many more advancements to, and in, the general's grade of the Army will be made during the coming months, it was revealed this week.

It may be expected shortly that promotions will be made to give all of the present corps area commanders the rank of major general. At a later date there is a strong possibility that the chiefs of staffs of the four Armies will be made major generals and their assistants brigadier generals.

Hot Press Debate Follows Report on Ambassador Kennedy's Views

Few occurrences have provoked such a variety of opinions as the published interview with Ambassador Joseph Kennedy which appeared in the Boston Globe and which the Ambassador later stated was, in part, unauthorized and carried the wrong impression of his views. Commenting generally, the Lynchburg, Va., News (D), says, "In view of the nature of that interview it would be reassuring if the Ambassador would give another and authorized interview . . . and taking the nation into his confidence, tell just exactly what his views are. Or could that be done without admitting the inherent authenticity of what was written?"

"Most of us," observes the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal (I), "have felt that the enthusiastic participation of labor in the war-government was a triumph of democracy. We have felt that the moment labor was invited to do this, and accepted the invitation, the war became a people's war. But Mr. Kennedy, as reported, says this means the coming of national socialism. This suggests that he is one of those who fears and hates any upsetting of the comfortable, privilege-ridden plutocratic system which has passed as democracy both in England and in America." Referring to the same statement, the Detroit, Mich., Free Press (I) asks if the "strong upsurge from beneath" is "unprecedented"? "The English will not care for Doctor Kennedy's diagnosis," the paper continues. "Possibly his usefulness as an ambassador ended with his interview. . . . It is something to his credit, however, that he has reversed the Walter Hines Page war-time tradition of United States ambassadors being more British than the British. For that he deserves commendation."

"Democracy is finished in England. If we get into war, it will be in this country, too," the Akron, O., Beacon Journal (IR) quotes Mr. Kennedy. "Put this statement at the head of the list of 1,001 other reasons why the United States must not permit herself to get drawn into war." Says the Daily Worker L., "The meaning of Roosevelt's role in the coming period, as bluntly stated in the interview, is clear. Roosevelt's job is to use his prestige among the masses to win them for a program in which they have 'no stake' and in which only the 'men who control industry' have a stake." Comments the Macon, Ga., Telegraph (D), "Mr. Kennedy in his own rough and tumble way said it was all 'bunk' to speak of Great Britain as fighting for democracy when, as a matter of fact, she is fighting for self-preservation, just as we will if it comes to us." It seems to us that the breezy ambassador is not quite logical. It is by no means impossible that Great Britain is fighting for her life and for her way of life at the same time."

"The public has something for which to be thankful," says the Hartford, Conn., Times (ID), "since the real, not-to-be-published attitude of the Ambassador reveals him to be jittery as to the future of democracy in Great Britain and not in harmony with the President or with the sentiments of the American people as to the foreign policy of the administration."

Says the Washington, D. C., Star, "His urgent recommendation that we provide all possible assistance to the British—for cash while they can pay and as a contribution toward our own self-preservation when their resources are exhausted—is sound. And equally rational is his warning that it would be fatal for us to let the next six months go by without making the most of every working day for defense." Observes the New York, N. Y., Herald Tribune (IR), "He is reported to have said that if we enter a war we will lose democracy—'everything we hold dear would be gone.' If this is so what worse fate could abject submission bring? Why build our defenses, why aid Britain? A political system that can only exist so long as nobody attacks it is too ethereal for this world. . . . And should Mr. Kennedy's belief in the defensibility of democracy be so feeble as we have been given to understand, not only should he resign his present post, but the country must test his every utterance with a new yardstick. Despair can stab democracy in the back quite as fatally as treason."

"If Ambassador Joseph Kennedy is right," says the Atlantic City, N. J., Press (I), "you wonder why either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Willkie wanted to be President. Democracy is all done. There is nothing to be gained about. . . . Consolation comes in the thought that Kennedy is probably not a prophet and he certainly does not live in times as evil as Jeremiah's. Nobody will stone him to death for his pessimism, but millions will still keep the faith."

Physical Exams and Waivers for Reserve and Nat. Guard Officers

Steps have been taken by the War Department to ease professional examinations for National Guard officers upon promotion, and to ease physical examinations for National Guard and Reserve officers called to active duty.

Both steps were urged by the National Guard Association at its recent conference in Washington, and the provision for readier promotion of Guard officers to fill vacancies in their units was made in a letter of the Adjutant General dated 3 Oct., but distributed under date of 24 Oct., the day after adjournment of the conference.

The letter provides that officer personnel of all units now in federal service be brought at once to full war strength to be ready for increases of enlisted components to war strength by addition of draftees.

Candidates recommended for promotion by their unit commanders must appear before boards of officers to demonstrate fitness for promotion, the boards in their discretion accepting attendance at service schools as indicative of the required military knowledge qualifications in the subjects covered.

These boards are now meeting in inducted divisions to select officers for promotion. Except for the 27th, no division appears likely to have sufficient qualified personnel for commissions, but the need for other than National Guard officers will be almost entirely in grade of lieutenants.

The prior orders required that candidates in all cases undergo a stiff examination, including "ability tests with troops."

Professional examination of candidates will be waived upon the recommendation of the division or separate unit commander if promotion is in the same arm or service as that in which the officer already is commissioned. The former order stated that "no part of the prescribed examination, including the ability test with troops, will be waived," except in the case of officers recently transferred from another branch.

The assignment order has been changed to remove the requirement that qualified National Guard officers must be found within 30 days after induction, and removes assignment of Regular Army officers from jurisdiction of the corps area commanders to the Adjutant General. The paragraph now reads:

"Vacancies which, because of insufficient qualified personnel, cannot be filled by the appointment or promotion of personnel inducted from the National Guard, may be filled by the assignment of any available personnel, irrespective of the component of origin. Such assignments will terminate when the unit concerned is relieved from active Federal service. Corps area commanders are authorized to issue the necessary assignment orders for this purpose, except in the case of Regular Army officers. As to Regular Army officers desired for duty with National Guard units for this purpose, corps area commanders will make suitable recommendations to The Adjutant General, who will issue the individual orders."

In connection with the War Department's change in policy concerning physical examinations for officers of the Reserve and National Guard ordered to duty with the Army of the United States, as reported on page 301 of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 16 Nov., the War Department has issued the following instructions:

"Information reaching the War Department indicates that in some cases officers of the reserve components who received two physical examinations by medical boards within the first thirty days after entry upon active duty, have been relieved from duty because of findings of the second board that were at variance with findings of the original board for defects that were within the scope of the original board examinations.

"Where a preliminary board of three or more medical officers appointed by proper authority has found an officer physically qualified for extended active duty, the recommendations of any succeeding board will be based solely upon those parts of the second or final type examination that were not within the scope of the preliminary board examination, such as chest X-ray, electro-cardiography, and serological tests. If the first examination was of the final type, no other examination will be required.

"In passing upon the physical qualifications of commissioned officers ordered to active duty, it is desired that reasonable waivers be granted where the interest of the government or of the military service is not compromised. Corps area and department commanders, and other reviewing authorities are authorized to waive physical defects existing at the time of entry upon active duty if such defects will not interfere with the satisfactory performance of field duties appropriate to the grade and assignment of the individual concerned, and if the nature of the defect is such that it is not likely to be aggravated to a disabling degree as a result of active military service.

"Waivers will be granted under this authority only upon the written request of the affected individual, and in the case of National Guard officers, upon the recommendation of the division or separate unit commander concerned. Each request for waiver will be accompanied by an affidavit from the individual acknowledging that the physical defects on which waiver is requested existed prior to entry into active military service, and that they were not the result of such service."

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commander of the 29th Division and chairman of the National Guard Association's resolutions committee, stated that the change in policy was "undoubtedly the result of the action taken at the conference and will be received with satisfaction throughout the Guard."

Adm. Land's New Honor

At its recent meeting in New York City the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers unanimously elected to its presidency Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, USN-Ret., formerly Chief Constructor of the Navy and now the able head of the Maritime Commission.

Nat. Guard Induction

Date of induction of the 35th National Guard Division, the 153rd Infantry and the 110th Observation Squadron has been postponed from 25 Nov. to 23 Dec.

As facilities become available these troops will go in training as part of the Second Army.

The 56th Cavalry Brigade (Texas) was inducted 18 Nov. being concentrated at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

War Resources Board

Senator Taft (R) of Ohio has introduced a bill in the Senate providing for the replacement of the National Defense Advisory Commission, of which the President is the head, with a War Resources Board to be headed by an Administrator to be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The Board or advisory council would consist of persons experienced in problems of defense, including representatives of the War and Navy Departments and of any National Defense agencies the President deems necessary. The Administrator would be authorized and directed under the Taft bill to discharge the following duties:

1. Formulate basic policies for mobilization of industrial and economic resources to meet requirements of a major war.
2. After consultation with the Secretaries of War and Navy to formulate detailed plans (a) for acquisition, purchase and storage of all raw, semi-processed and finished materials and supplies necessary for the national defense, and (b) for creation of adequate manufacturing capacity for arms, ammunition and implements of war and other equipment and supplies in such quantities and at such rates as may be necessary in time of war.

3. Make plans for reduction of activities of nonessential industries in time of war, or when war is imminent, and for their partial or total conversion to more useful war purposes.

4. To co-ordinate the requirements submitted by the Army and Navy for military equipment, munitions and supplies, with essential needs of other government agencies and those of the civilian population.

The next four provisions would vest the administrator with purchase, building and other defense powers now vested in various government departments or agencies.

The War and Navy departments would be powerless to contract for equipment, munitions or other supplies without approval of the administrator and only in accordance with the administrator's plans.

Named to Board of Appeals

President Roosevelt sent to the Senate this week the nomination of Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, publisher of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, to be a member of the Board of Appeals, District of Columbia, under the selective service act.

Active Duty for Reserves

The following policy to govern the detail of Reserve officers for duty in connection with construction has been announced:

Requests from The Quartermaster General for Reserve officers to be placed on duty in the Office of the Constructing Quartermaster will be given first priority for all Reserve officers on an inactive status.

Reserve officers, other than Thomason Act trainees, now on extended active duty, desired by The Quartermaster General will be relieved from current assignments and made available for duty with the Constructing Quartermaster in all cases where the relief can be effected without detriment to the Service. The consent of the officer with assignment jurisdiction will be secured in each instance.

Where consent cannot be obtained, the assignment of the officer concerned will be determined by the Adjutant General.

The Journal Salutes

This week the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL salutes:

Maj. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, USA, who has taken up his new duties as Commanding General IV Corps, Camp Blanding, Fla.

Capt. Paul S. Theiss, USN, who will command the SS City of Newport News, new Navy transport.

Ambassador to France

At a press conference in Hyde Park yesterday the President announced that the tender of the embassy at France has been made to General Pershing but the latter has found it necessary to decline.

There is no doubt that the General would have been glad to accept the appointment because it would have meant further distinguished service for the country and because of his close relations with Marshal Petain, head of the Vichy government. It has been the custom of the General to spend his Summers in France, where as chairman of the Battle Monuments Commission, he inspected the artistic cemeteries and attended to the details of their care, a labor of love for the boys who died under his command. Because, as members of the AEF know, the climate of France is trying in the Fall and Winter, the General has refrained from staying in that country in those seasons. He has usually come to Washington in the Autumn and Spring and passed the Winter months at Tucson, Ariz. From the outbreak of the War he has spent most of the time in Washington, and thus has been available for frequent consultations by officials of the government and especially by the Secretary of War and Chief of Staff. He is now at Walter Reed Hospital for his usual check-up, and reports of his physicians show that he is in excellent condition. However, the harsh character of the Vichy climate makes it inadvisable for him to establish residence there, and for this reason he was compelled regretfully to decline the post in which he would have taken such intimate interest, and in which he could unquestionably have rendered great service for France and the United States. While the government will lose by the General's declination of the Vichy embassy, it will more than make up as the result of his presence in Washington and the south where he can continue to advise not only upon the diplomatic but especially upon important questions of national defense.

Foreign Propaganda

The Dies committee has issued a White Paper which discloses German press and economic activity in the United States and Latin America that warrant action by the Government especially since German diplomats and consular agents are shown to have connection with them.

In the course of a radio quiz, Assistant Secretary of State Berle suggested that information in the possession of the State Department was even more comprehensive than that published by the committee. The White Paper sets forth correspondence between one Manfred Zapp and the charge d'affaires and counsellor of the German embassy relating in part to the financial difficulties of the Transoceanic News Service through which German propaganda was disseminated and the committee notes that it can hardly be contended that this service was a private agency, and not dependent for policy direction upon officials of Germany in the United States. Other correspondence in the White Paper caused the committee to assert that "it is quite evident that Dr. Ferdinand Kertress, although a naturalized American citizen, plays a leading part in helping the Nazis achieve their purpose," that the doctor and the Chemical Marketing Company "were very anxious to conceal the manner in which they were carrying on their business activity," and that a direct statement by the doctor shows that his firm "is in reality nothing more nor less than a front organization for the Nazi government in America whose avowed purpose is to protect German interests in Central and South America."

There is reason to believe that the committee has information showing exchange of information and propaganda between German, Italian and Japanese agents. Although some innocent persons and organizations are mentioned in the correspondence made public, which is regrettable since it puts them in a false light, the Committee is doing a splendid job in exposing totalitarian activities in this hemisphere and elsewhere. As a result some agents probably will be dismissed from the United States and it is to be expected that Americans generally will take greater care to avoid being used as communications channels and will look with greater suspicion, as they should, upon material emanating from totalitarian sources.

Distribution of National Defense Contracts

The National Defense Advisory Commission this week made public a breakdown showing the distribution of more than seven and a half billion dollars in Defense contracts by geographic regions.

This breakdown includes all major contracts let to 1 Nov. 1940. Where a concern maintains a central office and has a plant located in some other industrial area, the contract has been assigned to the producing plant.

The breakdown represents the spread of primary Defense contracts throughout the industrial structure of the nation. The figures do not show the sub-contracts by which raw materials and sub-assemblies are provided for the main contractor. In many industries these sub-contracts represent more than fifty percent of the entire expenditure. For example, a recent study showed 536 manufacturers located in 30 states contributed to the construction of one bomber, thus spreading much more extensively than shown in this tabulation the actual distribution of defense contracts throughout the entire nation.

Following is the tabulation:

R. A. F. Changes

London dispatches this week reported more important changes in the high command of the Royal Air Force. Air Chief Marshall Sir Hugh C. T. Dowding has been relieved of his duties and assigned to Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft production for special service in the United States. Beginning 1 Dec. the new Army Cooperation Command will be established with Air Marshall Sir Arthur Sheridan Barratt, who commanded the British Air Force in France at its head. The new Command will include all squadrons serving with the Army in the United Kingdom and its chief function, it is said, will be to organize, experiment with, and train various forms of collaboration between the two services. The bomber and coastal commands will be in charge of air operations against Germany and Italy, except where use is made of the fleet air arm. Earlier changes in the command of the R A F included the transfer of Air Chief Marshall Sir Cyril L. N. Newhall to the office of Governor of New Zealand. He was succeeded by Sir Charles F. A. Portal and he in turn by Air Chief Sir Robert Brooke Popham, who has recently arrived at Singapore, having been appointed commander in chief in the Far East—a new post which places him in command of operations in Malaya, Burma and Hong Kong.

Army Bars Convicted Felons

Selectees who have been convicted of a felony will not be inducted into the Army of the United States, the War Department announced this week.

Should any former convicts be inducted into the Army under the Selective Training and Service Act, through lack of knowledge that they had prison records, such men will be discharged immediately.

Other men barred from induction into the Army include those on parole or probation.

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Economy in Expenditures

In a letter to chiefs of arms and services and generals in the field, the War Department this week said:

"1. The following statement of the Chief of Staff before the Senate Appropriations Committee on 6 Aug. 1940, is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

"We must meet the situation that is facing us, and I see no way of doing that except by preparing. Huge sums of money must be spent, but that spending must be done in the most businesslike manner possible. There must be no undue waste. Hasty and ill-considered expenditures must be avoided."

"2. It is imperative that we proceed in a most expeditious manner to create a powerful military organization. It is equally imperative that adequate shelter and clothing be available, and that the health of the soldier be fully safeguarded. The urgency of these requirements may result in a tendency on the part of some individuals to involve the government in extravagant measures. This must not be tolerated."

General Marshall Inspects

General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff of the Army, visited Valley Forge Military Academy on 9 Nov. making a tour of the campus and buildings, and a brief inspection of the Corps of Cadets and their equipment.

Featuring the visit was a special Chapel Service at which the Chief of Staff was introduced to the Corps by Col. Milton Grafly Baker, Academy Superintendent, who also is Inspector General of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Following a luncheon in the Faculty Officers' Mess, General Marshall was accompanied by Colonel Baker and Maj. Milton H. Medenbach, the Academy Adjutant, on a tour of the school campus and buildings.

General Marshall outlined the nation's defense problems and told the cadets, in effect, that the one successful way to meet the threat of war was by total defense.

Secretary Stimson

Secretary of War Stimson arrived at Fort Benning, Ga., at noon, 16 Nov., by army airplane, for a stay of several days. Accompanying him was his military aide, Lt. Col. Eugene A. Regnier, Cav., USA.

At his alighting from the plane at Fort Benning's Lawson Field, the Secretary of War was officially welcomed by Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commanding general of Fort Benning, after which a guard of honor was presented to him while its band and field music sounded the four flourishes and ruffles and a battery of field artillery accorded him the 19-gun salute due a member of the President's Cabinet.

Immediately after this ceremony, Mr. Stimson, in an automobile bearing the secretary's flag, was escorted by a composite reconnaissance unit of scout cars of the 2d Armored Division to the quarters of Brig. Gen. George S. Patton, acting commanding general of the 2d Armored Division, whose house guest he was while at Fort Benning.

Other general officers at the air field to greet the head of the War Department as he arrived were Brig. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, commandant of the Infantry School; Brig. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, head of the Infantry Section of the 4th Division, and Brig. Gen. Fred C. Wallace, artillery commander of the 4th Division.

Saturday afternoon, Mr. Stimson made a tour of inspection of the organizational areas of Fort Benning. On Monday he left by airplane for New Orleans, to keep an engagement there, returning to Fort Benning that night.

The guard of honor which was presented to Mr. Stimson at Lawson Field upon his arrival at Fort Benning consisted of the band and Third Battalion of the 4th Division's 29th Infantry, with Lt. Col. Robert L. Dark in command. The gun salute was fired by Battery "A," 42nd Field Artillery Battalion, which also belongs to the 4th Division. Capt. Thomas I. Edgar commanded the battery.

Secretary Stimson visited Ft. McClellan, Ala., on 19 Nov., touring the Twenty-seventh Division camp with his wartime comrade, Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell.

When the Secretary of War landed at the airport, Lt. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the Second Army, was with General Haskell, to greet him, but later detached himself and went ahead with his inspection of the troops. With Mr. Stimson were Brig. Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the Second Armored Brigade, and Lieutenant Colonel Regnier.

New USMA Superintendent

Brig. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, USA, assumed his duties as 38th Superintendent of the United States Military Academy, succeeding Maj. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, on 18 Nov.

General Benedict, who began his administration at West Point on 5 Feb. 1938, has left to take over the command of one of the four newly-created Army Corps—the IV—at Camp Blanding, Fla. Mrs. Benedict accompanied him.

The Corps of Cadets—almost 1,850 strong—staged a special "band box" review 19 Nov. in honor of General Eichelberger. The official reception of the officer personnel of the Military Academy was tendered General and Mrs. Eichelberger in Cullum Hall Friday evening, 22 Nov.

The new Superintendent, who was 54 years old on 9 March, is one of the youngest Brigadier Generals in the Army. He was Commanding Officer at Presidio of San Francisco when his transfer to West Point was announced. He was promoted from the rank of Colonel about a month ago, at the same time General Benedict was stepped up from Brigadier General.

General Eichelberger's military career began with his graduation from the Military Academy in 1909. During the World War, he was in Manila as Assistant Chief of Staff for Military Information, Philippine Department.

He was awarded the coveted Distinguished Service Cross for "extraordinary heroism in action" while serving with the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia during the summer of 1919. On 28 June he entered partisan lines and effected the release of four American soldiers who had been captured. One of these men, Warrant Officer Custer Fribley, is at present on duty at West Point in the Quartermaster's office. On 2 July, General Eichelberger, then Lieutenant Colonel, covered, rifle in hand, the withdrawal of an American platoon caught by enfilading fire during a brisk skirmish at Novitskaya. The next day, when an American column was fired on while debouching from a mountain pass, he personally assisted in the establishment of a firing line.

General Eichelberger was also awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for exceptionally meritorious service as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, in the Siberian expedition.

He later served in China and from May 1921, to July 1924, was in Washington with the G-2 Section War Department General Staff. He then transferred to the Adjutant General's Department, and served in his branch at Fort Hayes, Ohio; Washington, D. C., and West Point. He was on duty as the Military Academy Adjutant General from August 1931, to April 1935.

General Eichelberger then acted as Secretary to the War Department General Staff in Washington until October, 1938, when he transferred again to the Infantry, his original branch, and was assigned to command the 30th Infantry at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Hostesses

Additional applications for appointment as hostesses at Army camps, will not be considered by the War Department. The Department already has received more than 7,000 applications which it has forwarded to Corps Area Commanders, who themselves have received thousands of additional applications. Only 99 are to be appointed.

Professional Examinations

The House and Senate this week passed the bill permitting discontinuance of the professional examinations for promotion of officers in the Medical, Dental and Veterinary Corps. The measure now goes to the President for signature.

The House took up the measure on 18 Nov. and amended it so as to eliminate the portion which granted the power to dispense with the examinations "in time of war or during an emergency declared by the President or by Congress." This was done in order to avoid the "embarrassing question of 'emergency'." Subsequently, the Senate, which had passed the original measure, accepted the House's amended bill. As passed by both houses, it reads:

"That until 15 May 1945, the Secretary of War may, in his discretion, dispense with any part of the examination for promotion in the Regular Army of officers of the Medical, Dental and Veterinary Corps, except those relating to physical examination."

Lower Navy Enlistment Ages

Secretary of the Navy Knox this week announced that in order to encourage enlistments of younger men, particularly those of high school caliber, the U. S. Navy has reopened enlistments of minors between the ages of 17 and 18 to serve until they reach their twenty-first birthday. Enlistments of these young men will be made only with the consent of their parents or guardians.

This decision was made as a result of the Navy's previous experience with the enlistments of young men of this age from which approximately twenty per cent of its first enlistments were obtained.

Regular term of enlistment in the Navy is 6 years.

Naval Aviators Missing

Ens. Stephen Marcy Frost, USNR, and Aviation Machinist's Mate, 3rd Class, Norris A. Oliver, USN, were missing after the airplane which Ensign Frost was piloting struck high tension wires across the west part of Lake Hodges, Calif., about 10:44 a.m., 15 Nov. It is believed that the plane crashed into Lake Hodges and diving salvage operations are underway.

Ensign Frost was born in Westfield, N. J., 21 Nov. 1916, and was a graduate of the NROTC unit of the University of California in 1939.

Aviation Machinist's Mate Oliver was born at Thrall, Texas, 19 Feb. 1918, and enlisted in the Navy 11 Sept. 1937.

Ask Use of School Graduates

Efforts of the Bureau of Navigation to increase the output of Class A training schools in order to furnish the fleet with trained men will be "nullified," the bureau warned this week, unless the graduates of the schools are assigned duties consistent with the training they have received.

The bureau stated that it was making every effort to increase the number of men graduating from the schools, making available to forces afloat men who, with some additional training aboard ship, should become quickly qualified for advancement.

1,923 Enlist In Navy

Navy recruiting stations reported 1,923 enlistments in the Navy during the week ending 8 Nov. Of these, 1,807 were first enlistments; 81 were reenlistments, while 35 former service men returned to naval service. Applicants accepted for first enlistment totalled 1,453.

Advancement of Fleet Reservists

The requirements for temporary advancement in rating of Fleet Reservists on active duty in the Navy were outlined in a Bureau of Navigation Circular Letter, No. 86-40, issued this week.

85 Marine Aviators to Line

A Marine Board to select not more than 85 aviators of the Marine Reserve for permanent commissions in the Marine Corps will convene at headquarters on 25 Nov. Col. Joseph C. Fegan, director of the Reserve Division at headquarters, will be senior member. Other members will be Col. James L. Underhill, Lt. Col. Bryon F. Johnson, Maj. William A. Brice and Capt. Ronald D. Salmon, who will also serve as recorder.

This board will operate under the same precept as that which activated the Naval Aviators' board which met 21 Oct. and whose report was printed in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last week. The Navy board was charged with selecting not more than 370 aviators of the Naval Reserve for permanent commissions in the line of the Navy, and actually chose that number. Two of the officers selected, however, died before adjournment of the board.

Both boards were created pursuant to the Naval Aviation Personnel Act of 1940, an act to increase the number of naval aviators in the line of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps. Text of the act was printed on page 226 of the 2 Nov. issue of this paper. The act, hereafter will limit appointments to aviators of the Naval or Marine Corps Reserve who are less than 26 years of age on 30 June of the year in which appointed and who have served 18 months on active duty on the same date following completion of training as aviation cadets. However, for the group to be considered by the present initial boards, age and continuous service requirements are waived, and there are therefore three classes of aviators eligible for selection—Reservists now on active duty, Reservists released from active duty upon completion of four years' active duty, and Reservists who have had not less than one year of duty in the Marine Corps Reserve.

More Naval Reserves Called

Six additional Fleet Divisions of the Organized Naval Reserves are scheduled to be ordered to active duty during December, 1940, and January, 1941, as follows:

23rd Division, Chicago, Ill.—3 officers and 100 men to USS Haywood, Transport (ex-City of Baltimore).

21st Division, Chicago—5 officers and 100 men to USS George F. Elliott, Transport (ex-City of Los Angeles).

20th Division, Chicago—2 officers and 100 men to USS Fuller, Transport (ex-City of Newport News).

22nd Division, Chicago—4 officers and 100 men to USS Neville, Transport (ex-City of Norfolk).

4th Division, Oakland, Calif.—1 officer and 100 men to USS William P. Billie, Transport (ex-City of San Francisco).

13th Division, Lynn, Mass.—4 officers and 100 men to USS Harry Lee, Transport (ex-Exochorda).

Two Baltimore, Md., divisions have already reported for guard duty in the Canal Zone.

Naval Academy News

Portuguese has been added to the course in foreign languages at the Naval Academy. It is being taught by Lt. D. Lee Hamilton, USNR, and Professor J. M. Purdie. At present twenty-six fourth classmen are enrolled in the course, which will be enlarged and continue for a second year making the Academy one of the few schools in the country offering two years of Portuguese. It will be taught as the language spoken in Brazil rather than the language of Portugal.

Admiral Peoples' New Post

Rear Adm. Christian J. Peoples, USN, who retired for age 1 Nov. after a long and distinguished record of service first in the Navy and later as Director of the Procurement Division of the Treasury, has been appointed special representative of Todd Shipyards Corporation. Announcement of the appointment was made this week by the President of the Corporation John D. Reilly. Admiral Peoples was the Naval representative of the Exports Control Committee during the Great War and is credited with developing the purchasing system of the Navy now in use. He was also a member of the Clearance Division of the War Industries of which Mr. B. M. Baruch was the head. Admiral Peoples was Paymaster General of the Navy and Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts 1933-35. He is a native of Iowa and was appointed to the Supply Corps of the Navy with the rank of Ensign forty one years ago next March.

USNA 100th Anniversary

The House Committee on the Library this week reported favorably on Senate Joint Resolution 253 which provides for the celebration in 1945 of the one-hundredth anniversary of the founding of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

The bill would establish a commission of three Senators, three representatives, the President of the United States, the Governor of Maryland, the Secretary of the Navy, the Superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, and five persons to be appointed by the President. The commission would formulate plans for the celebration to be held on or about 10 Oct. 1945.

Increase Navy Surgeons

Removal of the limitation on the number of acting assistant surgeons in the Navy has been asked of Congress by Secretary of the Navy Knox. The present limitation is 100. Rapidly increasing personnel strength of the Navy and Marine Corps necessitates the move, he said.

Navy 1941 Schedule

The U. S. Naval Academy's Football Schedule for 1941 was released this week by Capt. T. Starr King, Director of Athletics.

The schedule:

- 27 Sept., William and Mary College (at Annapolis, Md.).
4 Oct., West Virginia University (at Annapolis, Md.).
11 Oct., Lafayette College (at Annapolis, Md.).
18 Oct., Cornell University (at Baltimore, Md.).
25 Oct., Harvard University (at Cambridge, Mass.).
1 Nov., University of Pennsylvania (at Philadelphia, Pa.).
8 Nov., University of Notre Dame (at Baltimore, Md.).
22 Nov., Princeton University (at Princeton, N. J.).
29 Nov., U. S. Military Academy (at Philadelphia, Pa.).

For the 13th successive year, William and Mary is listed as the Navy's initial opponent. Navy began playing the "Indians" in 1923. After 3 games, there was a lapse of 3 years. The series was renewed in 1929, and has continued uninterrupted ever since. Of the 15 games played, Navy has won 14, and lost 1.

The Navy and West Virginia University have not met in football since 1917. The record of Navy-West Virginia competition is:

1911	"	32,	"	0
1916	"	12,	"	7
1917	"	0,	"	7

Lafayette is another team which the Navy has not met for two decades. In the early years of Naval Academy football, Lafayette frequently appeared on the Navy schedule, but there has been no meeting of these teams since 1920. The full record is:

1891	Navy	6,	Lafayette	4
1892	"	22,	"	4
1896	"	6,	"	18

The 1941 Cornell-Navy game will be the first varsity football meeting of these two institutions. The records show that in 1897 the Cornell 2nd team played the Navy's 2nd outfit, the Navy winning 22 to 8. However, the 1941 game will be the initial varsity contest.

The Navy will meet Harvard in the Cambridge stadium. Not since 1936, has the Navy penetrated so deeply into New England territory, then the midshipmen defeated the Crimson 20 to 13. These schools played their first game in 1907, Harvard winning 6-0. They played to a 6-6 tie in 1908. The next game was the above mentioned 1936 contest. The most recent meeting took place in the Baltimore stadium in 1937, the score a zero-zero tie.

Continuing an ivy-draped rivalry, the Navy and Pennsylvania will again meet in Franklin Field. The first game of this long series was played in 1888. The record to date shows 14 victories for Penn, 9 for Navy, and 2 ties.

Carrying on an uninterrupted series which began in 1927, the Fighting Irish and the Navy will play their 15th game. Notre Dame has won 11, and the Navy 3.

Princeton is also one of Navy's traditional football rivals. Games between the Princeton 2nd team and Navy were played as early as 1885, and the first varsity game was played in 1892. The record of Princeton-Navy football competition shows 15 victories for the Tigers, 7 for Navy, and 6 ties.

Climaxing and concluding the 1941 season will be the Army-Navy game which will be played in the Philadelphia Municipal Stadium. This series was begun in 1890, and the celebration of the 50th Anniversary will take place on 30 November 1940. The record to the present date is 22 victories for Army, 15 for Navy, and 3 ties.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant, and enlisted personnel, active and retired (a).
2. Revision of the promotion system for the Staff Corps of the Navy in accordance with the sentiment expressed by the officers concerned (b); perfection of the Navy Line Personnel Act (c); authorization for the retirement of colonels of the Army with the rank of brigadier general (d); clarification of the coast guard promotion system.
3. Expansion of the Regular Army and the National Guard to a strength of at least 550,000 men with provision for complete personnel and materiel and training for 100 per cent efficiency (e); personnel for the Navy and Marine Corps capable of fully manning all vessels of the fleet and the Fleet Marine Force.
4. Additional increases in grades and ratings, with compensation for technical knowledge and skill required by modernization (f).
5. Active duty training and service school attendance for available officers of the Reserve Corps (g); appropriations for the expansion program of the Naval Reserves (h).
6. Revision of pension laws to assure widows of the Regular Services a living income.
7. Compensation for service personnel whose privately owned automobiles are employed on Government business.

- (a) Active and retired enlisted pay increased.
(b) Study now underway in accordance with congressional action.
(c) Some amendments enacted after first bill had been vetoed by the President.
(d) Law enacted authorizing wing commanders and assistant chiefs of arms and services to retire with higher rank.
(e) Appropriations provided to exceed this figure and to buy arms and equipment.
(f) Large increases already made; more to come.
(g) Active duty and training now available to most reserve officers within certain age limits.
(h) Appropriations granted for increases and active duty.

GRATIFYING PROGRESS has been made during the third and concluding session of the 76th Congress, towards the realization of many of the objectives on the priority list of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. Notable among these are the following:

By the terms of the Selective Service Act Congress has granted pay increases for the enlisted men of the Army and Marines long advocated by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. Upward revision for the commissioned personnel will continue to be high on our priority list because such increases are essential to the welfare, and, therefore, to the morale of our defenders ashore and afloat.

Revision of the promotion system for the Staff Corps of the Navy was initiated by Congress, which enacted legislation transferring the naval constructors to the line of the Navy in the EDO status. More thoroughgoing and satisfactory may be legislation based upon recommendations of the special board which was directed by Congressional resolution to consider distribution, promotion and retirement of officers of the staff corps. Provision for the retirement with advanced rank of assistant chiefs of arms and services is partial recognition of the justice of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL's support of an authorization for the retirement of Colonels of the Army who have earned it with the rank of Brigadier General.

Expansion of the Regular Army and National Guard to a strength of at least 550,000 which has long been on our priority list has been more than realized by the increases in strength granted and appropriated for at the present session. Congress also has made a good beginning toward providing that personnel for the Navy and Marine Corps capable of fully manning all vessels of the Fleet and the Fleet Marine Force—this too has been high on our priority list. Already the Navy has been brought to a strength of 175,000 men and the Marine Corps to a strength of 38,500 men. It is hoped that the new Congress will authorize an increase of the Navy to at least 250,000 men and of the Marine Corps to 50,000 men during 1942, that the additional recruits may be obtained in time to be trained and ready as the new ships under construction are commissioned.

Congress has paved the way by appropriations at the current session for the granting of many of the additional increases in grades and ratings with compensation for technical knowledge and skill required in a modern defense force. This legislative achievement realizes another vital item long on our priority list.

As a result of the expansion of the armed forces—land, sea and air—thousands of officers of the Organized Reserves and Naval Reserve are now being given the active duty training and attendance at service schools which the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL has contended is imperative if they are to be qualified for their respective missions.

Unfortunately one of the most meritorious proposals long urged by the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL as a matter of common justice—a living income for widows of the regular services—has not been provided at the current session. The failure of the expiring Congress to pay this debt of honour should serve the new Congress not as an example but as a warning and a warning to be heeded. By way of keeping this obligation constantly before the incoming 77th Congress the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL will keep in its priority list for the coming year the following urgent recommendation: "Revision of pension laws to assure widows of the Regular Services a living income."

The man walked into a restaurant ornate in its futuristic decorations. He was ushered to a table and ordered a glass of water. The waiter brought the water, which the man swallowed with one gulp, and asked for another.

While the waiter was away the man took out a small package of sandwiches and spread them on the table. No sooner was this done than a severe looking individual came to the table and said:

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—A gigantic combination of nations is the aim of the Axis Powers, in preparation for simultaneous military operations against the most strategic points of the British Empire. The nations concerned in the negotiations are France, Russia, Spain, Hungary, Bulgaria, Roumania, and Jugo-Slavia, with other governments, including that of Chiang-Kai-Shek in China, neutralized. The military objectives to follow success of the negotiations, are the exits of the Mediterranean, which, occupied, would sever the life line of the British Empire, and Singapore, seizure of which would enable domination of the parts of the Empire in the Far East and the Pacific. Excluded from the negotiations insofar as the pending plans indicate, is the Western Hemisphere. Hitler and Mussolini are proceeding on the theory that their first job is to subjugate England, and that being accomplished, they can turn attention, if necessary, to other concerns.

In order to create the Alliance which the Axis strategists believe will bring about the downfall of England, there necessarily has had to be large and tempting prizes held out to the Nations whose support is being solicited. That occurred in the case of Russia during the recently concluded conferences between Foreign Commissar Molotov and Hitler and von Ribbentrop in Berlin. It was officially announced at the close of the conferences that an agreement had been reached on all matters of interest to Russia and Germany. This meant that Russia had been invited to participate in the new system to be made up of World Orders, the spoil allotted to Russia being the Dardanelles, southern Middle Asia with an outlet on the Persian Gulf, India, and that part of China which Japan is relinquishing. Made a part of, or dominated by, the Soviet Government would be not only the parts of the British Empire mentioned, but Turkey, Iraq and Iran.

In return for recognition of ownership, or dominance, of these possessions, Russia would enter no objection to Bulgaria, Roumania and Hungary participating in the war on the side of the Axis Powers, nor to Bulgarian acquisition of a port on the Aegean Sea, at the expense of Greece. Further, Russia, which has witnessed without protest the concentration of two large German armies on the Bulgarian and Jugo-Slavian borders of Roumania, would advise Turkey to permit one of these Armies to cross her territory en route to the Suez Canal. Finally, to free Japan in the Far East, Russia would recognize her possession of Chinese territory reaching from Manchukuo down the coast to Indo-China. Possibly, the line of Japanese sovereignty, will be that to which their troops are now withdrawing. So as not to have an enemy on her flank, Japan is to make an effort to negotiate peace with the Chung-King Government, and the Soviets are to apply pressure to it to come to an understanding. With the troops which termination of the China War would make available, Japan could march through Indo-China, and assist the Siamese Government to reduce Singapore, the Siamese Government to receive for its aid a part of Indo-China.

The entrance of the Balkan States into the Axis Order was the consequence of the agreement with Russia. Satisfied that the latter was committed to Germany, in part by her acquiescence in German occupation of Roumania, and in part by the absence of any protest either from Moscow or Budapest at German armies marching through Hungary to Roumania, they felt that their interests, plus the promise of territorial rewards, justified them in joining the Triple Alliance. Only Greece remains Britain's friend with Turkey so inclined but apprehensive.

Spain's part in this world-wide scheme depends upon France. The Franco Government is apparently willing to join in the attack upon Gibraltar, but it wants distinctly understood in advance the compensation it is to receive for the assistance. Franco believes he is entitled to a large part of French Morocco. After he and his Minister conferred with Hitler on this point, it is believed the German referred them to Vice Premier Laval. The Vichy Government, it appears, is not willing to cede territory to Spain as a bribe for her to attack England. It is in a position to offer some resistance since General Weygand is in Algiers, and he may or may not comply with the orders of Marshal Petain. If he and the troops under his command were to join the de Gaulle movement, the Italian position in Libya and Egypt would be awkward, if not dangerous. So the French authorities must be persuaded that they will get very lenient terms generally, if they comply with Spanish desire; and that does not appear probable in view of the expulsion of French residents from Lorraine. Another trading point the French have is their force in Syria. That force would be useful for an attack on the Suez Canal, and would be of great help to the British to resist the Germans. Also, there are French troops in Indo-China, which are loyal to the Vichy Government, and they could embarrass the Japanese, particularly if acting in cooperation with troops of Chiang-Kai-Shek.

Until the negotiations shall have been concluded, their full scope will not be known. All that can be said of them is that their objectives have been learned, and in the case of Hungary officially achieved; and as far as Britain can, she is endeavoring to prevent their realization. It is doubtful if her efforts will cause any change in the Soviet attitude. Possibly, a larger bribe may appeal to Spain, though this is unlikely less because of the gratitude Franco feels toward the Axis Partners, than the concentration of a formidable German Army on the Spanish frontier, and the presence of a division of German troops in civilian clothes in Spain. Turkey, which is a Greek as well as British Ally, finds it inexpedient to help Greece, and is responding to Russian pressure. Chiang-Kai-Shek is declaring that he will continue to battle until the last Japanese soldier is expelled from his country. He needs money. His Minister is in Washington asking for $200,000,000, and has received only $25,000,000. If he is to survive he must have the cash and munitions. That is the important problem now before the President, and upon its solution the fate of Britain in part will depend.

Rivers and Harbors—Many retired officers of the Corps of Engineers gradually are being recalled to active duty, principally for rivers and harbor duties, freeing active list officers for duties with troops in the expanding Corps. To date 11 retired officers have been recalled to active duty, and orders for four more have been requested. Of the 11 recalled, six are district engineers, two are assistants to division engineers, one is assistant to a district engineer and two are filling non-rivers and harbors posts. Of the four whose orders are pending, two will be district engineers. Thus when the 15 officers have reported, eight will be heading a sixth of the 48 districts, and three others will be filling assignments in the districts and divisions.

Officers recalled to active duty and assigned as district engineers are: Col. Frederick W. Altstaetter, Savannah District; Col. Earl I. Brown, Wilmington, N. C.; Lt. Col. George R. Goethals, Buffalo; Col. Charles Keller, Chicago; Col. William C. Weeks, Jacksonville; and Col. William J. Barden, Washington. Maj. Robert A. Sharrer has been assigned assistant to the Los Angeles District Engineer; Lt. Col. John W. Stewart has been assigned as assistant to the North Atlantic Division Engineer, and Col. John R. D. Matheson has been assigned as assistant to the South Pacific Division Engineer.

Several other changes in the commands of districts have also been made recently. Lt. Col. Willis E. Teale has been named Mobile District Engineer, Lt. Col. Holland L. Robb has been named Baltimore District Engineer and Capt. Gordon E. Textor has been named Denison, Tex., District Engineer.

Naval Auxiliaries—Acquisition of 17 additional small craft by the Navy Department for use as auxiliaries was announced this week, bringing the Navy near the end of its 350,000-ton auxiliary vessel procurement program. Included in the newest purchases were 11 mine sweepers which were formerly fishing trawlers; one sub-chaser, the yacht Edmar of Edward (Major) Bowes, radio entertainer; one gunboat, the yacht Orion; two patrol vessels, the yachts Savitar and Somona II, and two district craft, the tug Joseph Meseck and the trawler Cavalcade.

The yacht Edmar was sold by Mr. Bowes for $1, as was the yacht Savitar, owned by Joseph Seaman. The Orion cost $240,000, the Somona II cost $100,000, and the trawlers cost from $38,000 to $126,000.

These vessels are in addition to those already acquired which were listed on page 238 of the 2 Nov. issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Names for three transports and a number of other vessels recently acquired were approved this week by Secretary of the Navy Knox. The SS City of Norfolk has been named the USS Neville, in honor of Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, 13th Commandant of the Marine Corps, 1929-30. The SS City of Newport News has been named the USS Fuller for Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, 14th Commandant of the Marine Corps, 1930-34. The SS Exochorda has been named the USS Harry Lee in honor of Maj. Gen. Harry Lee.

Other names assigned were: Gunboats—USS Niagara (ex-Hi-Esmaro) and USS Vixen (ex-Orion); Patrol vessels—USS Argus (ex-Haida) and USS Siren (ex-Lotosland); Minesweeper—USS Gold Crest (ex-Stella Polaris); Coast Minesweepers—USS Heath Hen (ex-Noreen); Condor (ex-New Example); Hummingbird (ex-Whaling City) and Mockingbird (ex-Rio Douro).

On 20 Nov. the Navy Department awarded contract for construction of eight minesweepers and opened bids for nine sets of propelling machinery for minesweepers. General Engineering & Dry Dock Co., Alameda, Calif., will build four of the sweepers at $1,680,000 each, while Defoe Boat and Motor Works, Bay City, Mich., will build the other four for $1,577,500 each.

American Locomotive Company, Fairbanks, Morse & Company and General Motors Corporation were the bidders on the propulsion machinery, with quotations for all nine sets varying from $5,299,890 to $7,598,862. Four sets each are to be delivered to the hull manufacturers named above, and one set is to go to Norfolk Navy Yard.

Parachutists—The 501st Parachute Battalion recently constituted at Ft. Benning, Ga., will have its own green fields on which to jump, out of the way of the rapidly increasing air traffic of the post's Lawson Field. A 900-acre tract of land set aside solely for parachutists' use, now is being cleared and graded. The new field adjoins the landing field at the airport. Bounded partially on its west side by the Chattahooche River, it extends generally southeast and northwest. Already 275 Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees have the area one-fourth cleared. One hillock which breaks the surface of the new field will have its advantages, according to Maj. William M. Miley, commander of the battalion, because parachutists will be given training in dropping on broken as well as level country, in order to be prepared for the varied terrain that may be expected in battle.

In addition to the clearing work, two buildings will be constructed on the field. One will be given over to indoor training. In it, together with other equipment, will be kept suspension harnesses used in teaching novice jumpers to land on their feet properly in order to avoid shock. The other building will be for maintenance work. In it, parachutes will be stored, cleaned, dried, and mended. Also, there will be long tables for use in packing. It is every man's responsibility to pack his own chute properly.

Work on the training field project will be completed by the first of the year, according to Capt. W. L. Hardick, Assistant Executive officer for CCC work at Ft. Benning. As soon as a large enough part has been finished, the battalion, which now is rapidly nearing its allotted strength of 500, will begin making practice jumps on it.

Shipbuilding Expert at Navy—A former naval constructor, Joseph Wright Powell, USNA '97, has reported to the Navy Department as special assistant to the Secretary in connection with ship construction, it was learned this week. Mr. Powell has an office in the Navy Department but will spend most of his time in the field, visiting shipbuilding yards and making surveys with the object of speeding production. Mr. Powell has recently completed a short period of service with the National Defense Advisory Commission during which, at the request of William S. Knudsen, he made an inspection of East Coast shipbuilding yards.

Born in Oswego, N. Y., 15 Feb. 1877, Mr. Powell was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1897 and also in 1900 from the School of Naval Architecture, Glasgow University. He returned to the Naval Academy for a two-year course in naval architecture. He resigned from the Navy in 1906, served as assistant to the president of Cramp's Shipbuilding Corporation from 1906 to 1914, was president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. from 1914 to 1921 and vice president of Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation from 1917 to 1921. From 1921 to 1922 he served as president of the U. S. Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, and from 1930 to 1939 he served as president of United Shipyards. He is a past president of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Medical Department—Construction of a General Hospital at Santa Barbara, Calif., and one at New Orleans, Louisiana, has been approved. The Hospital at Santa Barbara will be a 750-bed establishment to cost approximately $1,042,800. The New Orleans Hospital will be somewhat larger, (1,000-bed capacity) and will cost approximately $1,358,300.

These Hospitals are to be built in accordance with War Department policy governing provisions of such establishments for new stations and will be of the cantonment type. Full facilities will be provided for competent operation and administration and include such buildings as Surgical, Medical, and Isolation Ward

Buildings; Dental and Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat clinics; an Infirmary for Sick Call and First Aid; a complete Laboratory; Physiotherapy Building; Administration and Surgery Buildings; Mess Halls; Quarters for bachelor officers, for Nurses, and for other Medical personnel; Recreation Buildings; Post Exchange; Workshops and Storage Buildings; and buildings for the Fire Protection Service.

Sites for the Hospitals were chosen with consideration for the military population each must serve. It is contemplated that these Hospitals will be ready for occupancy early in 1941.

Corps of Engineers—The 18th Engineer Regiment (Combat), now at Ft. Logan, Colo., will move to Vancouver Barracks, Wash., about 15 Jan. 1941 where they will be assigned to the Ninth (tactical) Corps. The move is necessitated by the turning over of the post of Ft. Logan to the Air Corps which will use it as a sub-post of Lowry Field. The already scheduled movement of the 7th Infantry from Vancouver Barracks to Ft. Lewis, Wash., also on 15 Jan., will provide quarters for the 18th Engineers.

Air Corps—Ft. Logan, Colo., will be turned over to the Air Corps on or about 15 Jan. 1941, to function as a sub-post of Lowry Field, Colo., for use in the training of Air Corps Administrative and Technical Clerks. Personnel involved in the move of the Department of Clerical Instruction from Lowry Field, seven miles away, number about 1000 (commissioned and enlisted strength).

The move is necessitated by the accelerated training rate for Air Corps enlisted technicians required by the 54 Combat Group program recently announced, which increases by approximately 400% the number of students scheduled to attend classes at Lowry Field. In addition, plans for the training of Flying Cadets in Armament and Photographic courses would further tax the facilities of Lowry Field. The training of administrative and technical clerks does not require the use of flying facilities in connection with the courses of instruction.

As a result of the turn-over to the Air Corps, the 18th Engineer Regiment (Combat), now at Ft. Logan, will move to Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

Construction of temporary buildings and other facilities at McClellan Field, Sacramento Air Depot, Calif., at a cost of $147,970, was authorized by the War Department this week. Air Corps units to occupy the new facilities are Headquarters of the Sacramento Air Depot; 62nd Transport Squadron, which includes Group Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, 4th Transport Squadron and 7th Transport Squadron; and Weather and Communications personnel. Necessary Quartermaster, Signal, Ordnance, Medical, Chemical Warfare Service and Finance personnel also will be stationed there. Four barracks, two day rooms and a cafeteria style mess will be constructed for enlisted men, while other new facilities will include an officers' mess building, two bachelor officers' quarters, a supply room (organization), a theatre and a commissary warehouse.

F. B. Davis, Jr., president of the United States Rubber Company, announced this week that, applying the recent laboratory-discovered knowledge that rubber could be made under particular conditions to transmit electricity and throw off heat in the process, the company's scientists have built a self-heating aviator's suit. Submitted to the Air Corps the test suit gave results superior to previous types of suits. Mr. Davis said, in that a proper heat equal to previous methods was delivered to the wearer's body with such added important factors as lesser weight, better fit and a superior scientific principle. A test order for a considerable number of suits followed and the suits have now been made and delivered to the Air Corps. "What had been done," Mr. Davis said, "was to turn non-conducting rubber into a resisting conductor by the addition of certain chemicals during the rubber-mixing process. This new type rubber sheeting, when electrically connected at the sheet-ends, will pass but resist the current passing through it. The result is a radiant heat thrown off evenly by the entire surface of the sheet."

Authority has been granted for additional construction of temporary buildings and facilities at McChord Field, near Tacoma, Wash. A total of $587,592 has been set aside for this purpose. The construction program will include 25 enlisted men's barracks, 6 day rooms, officers' quarters, officers' mess, two enlisted men's messes, 6 supply rooms, 3 administration buildings, an infirmary, a post exchange, a recreation building, a theatre, a warehouse, 4 bombsight storage buildings, a Link Trainer building, a school building and necessary utilities. Units to occupy the new buildings will be the 12th Group Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, which comprises the 81st, 82nd and 83rd (Light Bombardment) Squadrons; 19th Reconnaissance Squadron, 44th Air Base, an Antiaircraft Tow Target Detachment and weather, communication and other special troops.

The PT-20A, manufactured by the Ryan Aeronautical Company, San Diego, Calif., is undergoing test at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, by the Army Air Corps. This airplane is similar in all respects to the PT-20 airplane except for a change of engines. The PT-20A mounts a Kinner, five-cylinder radial engine developing 125 h. p. at 1925 r.p.m. The PT-20 was equipped with a Menasco engine. In making this change, the exterior appearance of the nose of the airplane is considerably different.

The B-25 medium bombardment airplane is undergoing inspection and testing by Air Corps officers and engineers at the plant of the North American Aviation, Inc., at Inglewood, Calif. This new medium bombardment airplane is an all metal monoplane of conventional design with an internally braced mid-wing. The landing gear is fully retractable and is of tricycle design. It is powered with two 14-cylinder two-row radial air cooled engines. Propellers are of the controllable-pitch constant-speed full-feathering type. The airplane carries a crew of five and full navigation and radio equipment.

Infantry—Maj. Gen. George A. Lynch, Chief of Infantry since 24 May 1937, was a week-end visitor at Ft. Bragg, N. C., at the quarters of his son, Capt. George E. Lynch. General Lynch was met by Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, post commander, and several scout cars of the 9th Reconnaissance Troop and escorted to the Ninth Division area where he inspected each regimental area and reviewed the 60th, 47th and 39th Infantry regiments. Following the review, he congratulated the assembled officers of these units on the progress they had made in the training program of their regiments and the newly organized Ninth Division.

The Eleventh Infantry will be transferred from Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to Ft. Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich., early in January, 1941. The regiment will join the Fifth Division which is now in process of concentration at Ft. Custer. Movement of personnel will be made by rail. Motor vehicles will move overland. Organized in 1861 as the Second Battalion, Fifteenth Infantry, the regiment was constituted a separate regiment in 1866 and designated as the Twenty-fourth Infantry. It was consolidated with the Twenty-ninth Infantry in 1869 and designated as the Eleventh Infantry. Besides the Civil War, the regiment also served with distinction in the Indian Wars, the Spanish-American War and the World War. After the transfer of the Eleventh Infantry, Ft. Benjamin Harrison will be garrisoned by the 201st Infantry and Company A of the 85th Quartermaster Battalion (Light Maintenance). A 1,000 man Reception Center also is being organized there.

Hydrographic Office—Two new Hydrographic Office Manuals: "Aerial Photography for Hydrographic Surveys," by J. M. Haynie, and "Manual of Aerial Photogrammetry," by P. G. McCurdy, recently were published by the Hydrographic Office of the U. S. Navy. These manuals are the first to be published wherein the new art of photogrammetry has been fully described in relation to hydrographic surveys. These manuals were designed for the guidance of personnel engaged in surveying duty under the direction of the Hydrographic Office, as well as for those engaged in producing new charts from survey data. Written in a clear manner and based on practical considerations, these manuals have been the subject of much favorable comment from professional photogrammetrists. The first edition is practically exhausted and a second printing is contemplated in the near future to fill the large demand from the armed services, governmental agencies, and independent map makers in the United States and Canada.

Marine Corps—Tests of four .30 caliber rifles were begun this week by a Marine board in an effort to select the weapon best suited for the Marine Corps. The four weapons undergoing tests are the Garand semiautomatic rifle (M-1), which has been standardized for Army use and placed in mass production; the Johnson semiautomatic rifle, a semiautomatic rifle developed by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, and the present standard 1903 bolt-action Springfield. Tests are expected to last from three to six weeks. In addition to members of the board, of which Lt. Col. William W. Ashurst, USMC, is senior member, representatives of arms companies will be on hand, and Army officers have been invited to observe the trials. The tests are being held at the Marine Base, San Diego.

Adoption of the Garand semiautomatic rifle as standard for the Army was accompanied by much acrimonious debate and charges were leveled against the weapon's accuracy, ruggedness and ease of manufacture. Much of this discussion has died down during the year the rifle has been in service, but the Marine Corps has never been convinced that the piece is the weapon it wants, although the corps has had an appropriation to purchase quantities of the M-1. The corps has expressed interest in the possibilities of the new Winchester as demonstrated in pilot models. To date, however, there have been no commitments on any type of shoulder weapon.

On 1 Dec. the four-year term of duty of Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, will expire. To date, the President has not nominated an officer to this important post. General Holcomb, of course, is eligible for reappointment. Any colonel or general officer of the corps is eligible for appointment under the law. Among the major generals the only officer who could serve a full four-year term is Maj. Gen. Upshur. Maj. Generals Louis McC. Little and James C. Breckenridge will both reach scheduled retirement age of 64 years next year.

Among the contracts awarded last week by the Navy's Bureau of Supplies and Accounts one assumes special interest for the Marine Corps. The award was for "Boats, 'Eureka' type"—which is a landing boat destined for the Marine Corps. The $2,177,500 contract went to Higgins Industries, Inc., New Orleans.

The Marine Corps probably will complete recruitments to full authorized strength of 38,600 this month, it appeared this week, with announcement that enlisted strength had reached 37,988 on 15 Nov. Fifty-seven reenlistments and 427 first enlistments during the week ending that date were responsible for the total, and if a comparable rate of enlistments obtains this week and next week, the goal should be reached. Already plans are being made to slow the tempo of the recruiting drive.

Naval Construction—Speed-up in private and Navy yards will materially reduce time of construction of naval vessels, observers predicted this week. The battleship North Carolina, scheduled for commissioning in December 1941, probably will be placed in service next July. The Washington will be completed early in 1942; the South Dakota, Indiana, Massachusetts, Iowa and New Jersey in 1943. Time for completion of other vessels has been similarly advanced through standardization of parts, negotiated contracts, expansion of facilities and increase in working hours.

The tempo of naval shipbuilding steadied during the past month, no completions of construction being reported and only three keels being laid. Four vessels were launched. This is a natural condition, for most of the old construction is now completed, and though work is progressing rapidly on the 1940, 1941 and expansion program ships, none have advanced to the launching stage.

On 12 Nov. the keel of the submarine Greenling was laid by Electric Boat Company, while eight days earlier the Silversides was laid down at Mare Island Navy Yard. On 2 Nov. the destroyer Swanson was launched at Charleston Navy Yard, a few days more than a year after she was ordered. On 11 Nov. the destroyer Ludlow took the water at Bath Iron Works. Keel of the submarine chaser PC 453 was laid 24 Sept. at Fisher Boat Works, while on 29 and 31 Oct., respectively, the motor torpedo boats PT 6 and PT 7 were launched.

Finance Department—The office of assistant Chief of Finance and executive officer to the Chief of Finance has been separated to relieve some of the work devolving upon Maj. Gen. Howard K. Loughry. Col. Edwin J. O'Hara, who held both posts, is now assistant chief of finance, while Maj. W. T. Johnson, former assistant executive, is executive officer. Capt. A. H. Miller, Fin.-Res., is due to report for extended active duty 1 Dec. as assistant executive officer. The Finance Department is handling not only Army disbursements, but accounts of the Selective Service System, the Inducted National Guard, and the Civilian Conservation Corps. In addition to Captain Miller, three other officers of the Finance Reserve have been added to the Washington staff of the Chief of Finance—Capt. M. R. Tidwell, 1st Lt. J. M. Parker, and 2nd Lt. W. W. Voigt.

Two officer students of the Finance School completed the course at Camp Holabird, Md., this week and received diplomas from General Loughry in his office 22 Nov. One of the graduates, Capt. G. L. Eatman, (Inf.), FD, will become assistant finance officer at Ft. Meade, Md., and the other, Capt. W. R. Woodward, (Inf.), FD, will be a property auditor at 4th Corps Area headquarters, Atlanta, Ga.

Graduation exercises for 67 enlisted men attending the Finance School will be held 6 Dec.—two weeks earlier than the originally scheduled date, in order that the men may go to waiting field assignments. Diplomas probably will be presented by General Loughry.

Also at San Diego is the headquarters company of the FMF, the base depot, FMF, a signal detachment for the post, the 2nd Aircraft Group, and a base service battalion.

The 1st Aircraft Group is now at Guantanamo except for a base detachment at Quantico. There is also a base air detachment at St. Thomas, V. I., and detachments and trainees at Lakehurst, N. J. and Pensacola, Fla.

Returning to the most numerous group of Marines, those on detached service, there is found at Washington the Headquarters, the detachments at Marine Barracks and at Washington Navy Yard, the Navy building guard and the Marine Band.

At Portsmouth, N. H., there is a detachment at the Naval prison and at the navy yard; at Boston, there is a Marine barracks, and at Hingham, Mass., a guard at the ammunition depot. Detachments are stationed at the torpedo station and naval training station at Newport, R. I.; at the New London submarine base; at the New York navy yard and receiving ship; at the ammunition depots at Iona Island, N. Y., Dover, N. J., and Ft. Mifflin, Pa.; at the naval air stations at Lakehurst and Cape May. In Philadelphia there is a Marine barracks, a receiving station detachment and the staff and student body of the basic school. There is a Marine detachment aboard the USS Reina Mercedes, Naval Academy station ship, and one at the Indianhead naval powder factory.

Quantico requires, in addition to the troops previously named, a post service battalion, a guard company, a school detachment and service troops for the rifle and pistol ranges. At Norfolk, there are troops for the Naval Operating Base, and at nearby Portsmouth, a Marine barracks for the navy yard and a detachment for the sea school. The adjacent ammunition depot at St. Julien's Creek and the mine depot at Yorktown require guards.

At Parris Island, where recruits are trained, is a headquarters company, a service company, a band school, as well as a defense battalion. Guards must be provided for the Charleston, S. C., navy yard, and the naval air stations at Corpus Christi, Jacksonville, Miami and Pensacola. Inland are found detachments for the Great Lakes naval training station, the South Charleston, W. Va. ordnance plant, and the Hawthorne ammunition depot, and on the West Coast detachments at San Pedro, Mare Island, San Clemente Island, San Francisco, Keyport and Puget Sound. Finally, throughout the United States are found recruiters, paymasters and supply personnel, officers attending educational institutions, and officers on special duty with the Army and Navy, or at the service schools of those branches.

Jumping the ocean, the anchor and globe is found at Cavite Navy Yard, Olongapo Naval Station, Guam and Samoa Naval Stations, at Sitka, Kodiak and Unalaska in the North, at Pearl Harbor, Oahu and Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii; at Coco Solo and Balboa in the Canal Zone and in Puerto Rico. And even before arrival of the 1st Brigade there was a detachment at the Guantanamo Naval Station.

In China, across the world, are 60 officers and 1,500 men, comprising the 4th Marines, at Shanghai, and detachments at Peiping and Tsingsing.

Finally, aboard naval vessels in two oceans are detachments. The 49 vessels in which Marines are serving include all battleships, aircraft carriers and cruisers as well as transports and certain other vessels of the Train.

Influence in Contracts

Acting Secretary of War Patterson on 19 Nov. issued the following statement in reference to contracts:

"Rumors have come to the attention of the War Department that various persons are holding themselves out as possessing influence with the Department or with officials in the Department and are offering to sell their services to business concerns in the matter of obtaining contracts.

"There is no truth in representations of this sort, and business concerns are cautioned against having dealings with persons who make such representations or offer such services.

"Notice is directed to the fact that the forms of contract to be signed by contractors contain a warranty by the contractor that he has not employed any person to solicit or secure the contract on any agreement for a commission, percentage, brokerage or contingent fee, together with a further provision that breach of this warranty shall give the government the right either to cancel the contract or to deduct the amount of such commission, percentage, brokerage or contingent fee from payments due the contractor. The Department will enforce this provision in all cases that come to its attention."

Magazine Activity Bar to Pay

The Comptroller General ruled this week that Col. F. G. Hetzel, NGUS-NY, president of the Quartermaster Association, will not be entitled to draw pay and allowances if he is inducted into Federal service, unless he first relinquishes his officership in the association. The Comptroller held that the prohibition in the Appropriation Act against active officers being engaged "in any manner" with military publications which accept paid advertising from firms doing business with the government, applies to National Guard officers inducted into Federal service.

The ruling was made upon request of the Secretary of War, who pointed out that the Quartermaster Association publishes the Quartermaster Review. He stated that the advertising activities of the Quartermaster Review are segregated from its other activities, advertising being handled by a civilian advertising manager on a commission basis and "the President takes no part in soliciting advertising and has no direct or indirect contact with advertisers."

In his reply the Comptroller said: "The restriction applies to any officer or enlisted man on the active list of the Army 'who is engaged in any manner with any publication' as therein described, and you state the publication to which you refer carries paid advertisements of firms doing business with the War Department. The broad language 'engaged in any manner' cannot be construed as including only those officers who are engaged in the advertising activities of the publication, but necessarily must be construed as including, also, the officers of the organization—the organization, in fact, being responsible for the publication and the publication being, apparently, the organ of the organization."

"I have to advise, therefore, that an officer of the active National Guard in the actual service of the United States and entitled to receive, and required to be paid, his pay and allowances under the appropriation 'Pay of the Army,' is an officer on the active list of the Army within the meaning of that term as used in the last paragraph under the appropriation which you first quote in your letter, and that that restriction is applicable to him. Hence, if Colonel F. G. Hetzel of the New York National Guard is president of the Quartermaster Association when he is ordered into actual service of the United States, the appropriation under 'Pay of the Army,' 1941, is not available for his pay and allowances so long as he continues in that capacity."

Awards of Soldier's Medal

The War Department has announced the following citations for awards of the Soldier's Medal for gallantry in action:

To: Perry H. Eubank, first lieutenant, 55th Coast Artillery, United States Army. "For heroism displayed in rescuing a woman from drowning in the Pacific Ocean at Mokapu Beach, Oahu, Territory of Hawaii, on 4 Sept. 1939."

To: Glen D. Franklin, corporal, Troop E, 8th Cavalry, United States Army. "For heroism displayed in recapturing three armed escaping prisoners at Fort Bliss, Tex., on 27 May 1940."

ment in 1893. He was also commissioned a regimental surgeon. His association with national guard and national defense was almost continuous.

Colonel Cooper's service in the World War was a voluntary duty from the entry of the United States into the conflict until after demobilization. He was with the American troops, representing the U. S. veterans bureau, when the U. S. Army of occupation moved out of Germany and returned to the states.

He was a Fellow of the American Medical Association and a member of the Association of Pacific Coast Railroad Surgeons.

Colonel Cooper married Miss Katherine Christie McGrew, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John S. McGrew, at Honolulu, on 24 March 1897. He had three children: Charles Bryant Cooper, Jr., realtor, John McGrew Cooper, USNA, '23, with the Bank of Hawaii, and Mrs. Gerard H. Wood, wife of Comdr. Wood of the USS Pennsylvania.

W. O. Eligibles Assigned

Assignment of many of the 450 eligibles on the Army warrant officers' list to duties of that grade within a short time loomed as a definite possibility this week.

In order to provide for the existing shortage of warrant officers, enlisted men who are now on the warrant officers eligible list and whose classification as administrative (clerical) is justified on the basis of their record of service, will be assigned to duty in corps areas in place of warrant officers of the Adjutant General's Department, that department announced.

The War Department has transmitted legislation to Congress which would reorganize the warrant grade and increase the number of warrant officers but action on this bill does not appear to be likely until the next Congress.

Below are printed the names of warrant officer eligibles qualified for administrative duties. Requirements for clerical personnel to fill vacancies and key positions in corps area service commands which are appropriate assignments for warrant officers will be filled where necessary from this list.

The War Situation

The European War no longer centers about the Battle of Britain and the struggle for mastery of the air over the North Sea front, but is becoming more and more widespread in its scope. Nazi steamers attempt to leave Tampico, Mexico, but are unsuccessful. Three return to port while another is sunk by her officers and crew upon the approach of vessels believed to be enemy men-of-war. It is probable that these Nazi ships were attempting to get into the Atlantic to refuel and supply raiders of the Axis. The giant liner, the Queen Elizabeth, has left New York for an unknown destination, probably to ply between the South Pacific and Canada or Egypt, or both. British cruisers, destroyers and submarines are reported to be patrolling in the South China Seas. Thus it is seen that British sea power is exerting its strength over the seven seas while the Axis powers, primarily, Hitler, are attempting to consolidate their European gains and to extend the political front of the Axis.

The part that the many British naval bases play in the conflict raging over Europe and Africa is becoming more and more apparent. While Hitler permits Mussolini's legions to meet reverses in Greece, Great Britain is building another base at Suda Bay in Crete. She is reported to be installing long-range guns there which with adequate anti-aircraft and coastal defense will increase immeasurably the effectiveness of British aid to Greece and other countries in the Near East which dare to oppose the Axis. Crete lies across the entrance to the Aegean Sea and close to the Italian bases in the Dodecanese Islands which are northeast of Crete and off the Turkish Coast.

That Crete is already an important link in Great Britain's chain of bases is indicated by the fact that British air communications are being issued from a headquarters in Athens. It is reported that British and Greek planes have combined to give Greek armies actual combat support by machine gunning and bombing Italian bases and columns. Probably, the most valuable British aid has been the bombing of Italian and Albania ports, interruption of Italian supply lines across the Adriatic Sea and the bombing of the Italian Fleet at its Taranto base.

The inability of Mussolini's air force and submarine fleet, supported by his battle fleet, to seriously interrupt British aid is one of the mysteries of the war. There is much speculation as to the reasons. The most likely appear to be the quality of Italian leadership, both on the sea and in the air, and the lack of fuel oil and aviation gasoline. Whatever the reasons, the latest despatches say that Greeks with British aid are inflicting heavy losses on the Italian forces in Albania.

Another important development in the Mediterranean is the transfer of the French fleet from Toulon to the French naval base, Bizerta on the African coast. It also has been reported that French merchant ships have been playing between France and Syria. The British sea power is undoubtedly extended to the limit, however. It is not likely that the British would permit the French ships to move freely about the Mediterranean if it was felt that the French would be able to give any material aid to the Axis at the present time or in the future.

There are signs that the French government at Vichy is resisting more and more Hitler's demands. The more Hitler extends his lines in the Near East, the fewer forces he will have in Western Europe to police the conquered countries and to protect his air and submarine bases. These bases are absolutely essential if he is to win the Battle of Britain.

The outstanding event in the Battle of Britain since the British raids on Munich while Hitler was speaking there was the devastating bombing attack on Coventry, ninety miles northwest of London, on 14 Nov. 1940, the same night on which the British bombers attacked Berlin in their heaviest raid of the war, with railway stations, freight yards and power plants as their objectives. The important military objectives in Coventry are the Morris, Napier, and Armstrong-Siddeley motor works, also a General Electric plant. Berlin claims that these were destroyed but the British say that an anti-aircraft barrage forced the raiders to such a high altitude that their bombs missed their targets. The British admit that much of the city is in ruins, including the fourteenth-century St. Michael's Cathedral. There were over a thousand casualties out of a population of approximately two hundred thousand. The Nazis report that more than 500 planes dropped 60,000 pounds of incendiary bombs and 1,000,000 pounds of high explosives. It is estimated that for ten and a half hours bombs fell at the rate of one a minute. This raid on Coventry was followed by heavy raids on London and Birmingham. In the meantime the Royal Air Force have carried their raids on military objectives as far East as the great Skoda munitions works in Czecho-Slovakia—formerly Austria.

There are no authentic public reports of the damage which is being inflicted by such raids. However, the mere fact that they are being continued on an ever increasing scale indicates that the high commands consider that they are accomplishing some definite result.

To a limited extent the bombing plane has been eclipsed by the torpedo plane which has been credited with such success in the British raids on the Italian naval base Taranto. Torpedoes may be fitted with devices which give them a great advantage when fired at masses of ships, such as ships in a harbor or in a close fleet formation. First, they may be fitted with devices which give them a long range of several miles at reduced, relatively slow, speeds. Second, another device will cause the torpedo to circle after having run a set distance on a straight course; this circling will continue until the motive power is exhausted. Third, yet another device will permit the plane to be headed in any direction when the torpedo is launched. This type of torpedo gives a great tactical advantage when the plane approaches the enemy. Whether or not any of the British torpedoes fired by the planes were fitted with the above devices is not known.

Recall Retired Non-Com

Orders were issued this week recalling a retired master sergeant to active duty. M. Sgt. William H. Schneider, USA-Ret., who has been residing at Highland Falls, N. Y., has been ordered to report to the superintendent, United States Military Academy, for active duty in the grade of master sergeant.

Air Corps Uses Invisible Light

Wright Field, Dayton, O.—Invisible light is being used in the new fluorescent system of illuminating airplane instrument panels which was developed for the Air Corps by the Materiel Division at Wright Field.

Designed to provide adequate light without glare, this system has been standardized after four years of experimental development by Wright Field engineers working in conjunction with commercial firms.

Air Corps pilots who flight tested it under all conceivable conditions encountered in night flying were particularly impressed with its performance in night formation flying, night landings, and in the tricky half-light of dawn and dusk.

The invisible light is easy on the eyes during the long-range missions wherein the pilot is obliged to read the instruments for hours on end. And since even illumination is provided with a low level of light intensity, there is less contrast between the inside of the airplane and points outside, an immense advantage when a pilot is making a split-second check of his position in relation to other airplanes in a formation, or when accomplishing a night landing.

Used by British

Other points of superiority over the superseded systems are that costs are reduced, wattage is less, service life is longer, and maintenance is greatly simplified. England, speedily aware of the desirability of the new lighting system, sought and is getting it installed on certain airplanes purchased in this country. It is logical to expect that any airline with extensive night-operation schedules will want it.

In using invisible light the pilot merely snaps a switch and the figures, scale divisions, and range markers on some twenty instruments take shape in the darkness. Some are red, and contrast very sharply with others in vivid and a darker green. They are easier to read than the speedometer in a car. Yet the light is soft and there is no glare.

The result is achieved with luminous paint applied to standard instrument dials. Invisible light from three fluorescent lamp assemblies rigidly mounted between the seats and instrument panel

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE San Francisco Air Station was officially opened and placed in commission at 10:45 a. m., Friday, 15 Nov. 1940. Capt. Stanley V. Parker, District Commander of the San Francisco District, read the orders and delivered the station to its first commanding officer, Lt. George H. Bowerman. At the commissioning ceremony there were approximately 150 guests.

This station is located at Mills Field which is 18 miles south of San Francisco. Its location affords a beautiful setting, being between the shore highway and San Francisco Bay.

The contemplated complement for this station calls for 5 commissioned officers, 1 Chief Warrant Machinist, 1 Pay Clerk and 60 enlisted men, two of which are aviation pilots. The equipment will consist of five planes and three boats.

Admiral Waesche Speaks

Rear Adm. Russell R. Waesche, Commandant of the Coast Guard, addressed the officers and members of the various Coast Guard Reserve units of the New York area in the Downtown Athletic Club, New York City, on 14 Nov. Approximately 200 Reservists attended the meeting.

The Commandant spoke on the present Coast Guard Reserve and the purposes of the bill to create a new Coast Guard Reserve, now pending in Congress.

Gale on Lake Michigan

Due to the violence of the gale which struck Lake Michigan on 11 and 12 Nov., floating units of the Chicago and Cleveland Districts, together with many shore units, have been actively engaged in assistance duties.

On 11 Nov., the fishing boats Indian and Richard II. foundered off South Haven, Mich., with the loss of eight lives. On the same day the motorship Justine C. Allen broke her steering cables and the SS Novadoc stranded near Pentwater, Mich., with a loss of 17 of the 19 members of her crew. The SS Anna C. Minch also foundered off Pentwater on the 11th with a loss of 17 members of her crew. The Car Ferry City of Flint No. 32 stranded near Ludington, Mich., but was successfully floated with no casualties. The SS Synalco stranded near Fayette, Mich., the 39 members of her crew being saved. The SS Empire State motor-barge with disabled steering gear limped into port of Detroit on the 12th. The SS Peterson stranded off St. Helena Island. The SS Comenat stranded on Pelkie Reef. The SS Frank Billings reported in distress off Saul Choix Point but in no immediate danger. The motor-ships Mercury and New Haven were reported missing. The yacht Nancy Jane is also reported missing. Eight duck hunters were rescued by the Coast Guard in Wisconsin. Coast Guardsmen recovered the remains of three men who were found frozen to death. On 14 Nov., the cutters Ossipee and Hollyhock were reported assisting the stranded steamer Peterson off St. Helena, Mich.; the cutter Nansmond en route to New Shoals to assist the steamer Arthur Orr reported ashore. The cutter Hyacinth was reported en route Beaver Island and the cutters Antietam and Celfax en route Manitou Pass for assistance work.

New Construction

Construction on the two new river tenders, Dogwood and Sycamore, contract for which was awarded some time ago, is now underway at the Dubuque Boat and Boiler Works, at Dubuque, Iowa. The contract calls for completion in 300 days. The vessels are of 113 feet length and 26-foot beam and displace 230 tons. They will be powered with 400 horsepower diesel engines.

Bids will be opened this week, for two 180-foot cutters and one 200-foot cutter. These vessels are to be diesel-electric powered and are to be capable of tender and cutter duties and will have ice-breaking features.

Bids also are out for a buoy boat for the Ohio River and a buoy boat for the Columbia River.

Notes on Vessels

The cutter (tender-class) Poppy which has been employed for some time past in neutrality and enforcement duties in the Tampa, Fla., area, is to be returned to service in the maintenance of aids to navigation.

Orders previously issued to place the tender Mayflower in commission have been rescinded.

The towboat Minneapolis which was transferred to the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard from the Army, was placed in commission on 13 Nov., at St. Louis, Mo. Personnel from the Cutter Cottonwood (tender-class) Bosn, William C. Hart, commanding, was transferred to the Minneapolis. The cutter Cottonwood will be placed in a decommissioned status.

Headquarters has issued orders for the decommissioning of the Cutter Ivy (tender-class). The Ivy until recently was stationed at Key West, Fla., but was relieved by the new cutter Juniper (tender-class).

glass was built into the lamp housing. This glass filters out the dangerous (germinal and tanning) rays which might be injurious.

A vibrator type of inverter was designed to change the airplane battery voltage (direct current) to the 110 volt AC required for fluorescent lamps, together with an auxiliary which reduces the voltage to 45 volts when the lamp are in established.

As one of the final tests of the project, the fluorescent system, the individually lighted system, and the argon system were tested together for comparison in the Aero Medical Research Laboratory at Wright Field. For this investigation, two men with normal vision were chosen. For ten consecutive days, each of the men was exposed to each of the systems in a dark room for seven hours daily. Each wrote daily accounts of his impressions with particular reference to eye strain and fatigue, visibility of the dial figures, glare, and other pertinent observations. Their eyes were examined at the end of each day.

Conclusions drawn from the findings were to the effect that the fluorescent system was definitely superior. It gave no glare from reflected light, supplied even and adequate illumination, and did not cause eye strain since the dial numbers were easily visible and readable.

An ingenious adaptation of invisible light has given the Air Corps, the "Eyes of the Army," better sight at night.

Two Army Stations Named

Two Army stations have been named in honor of two Brigadier Generals now deceased.

The Post near Anchorage, Alaska, known as Elmendorf Field, has been designated as Fort Richardson, in honor of one of Alaska's soldier-pioneers, the late Brigadier General Wilds P. Richardson.

The other station is the Anti-Aircraft Firing Center near Savannah, Georgia, which has been designated as Camp Stewart, for the Revolutionary War hero of that name.

The air field at Fort Richardson will continue to be designated as Elmendorf Field.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

Events abroad necessarily are continuing to have their influence upon our markets. Among them this week were the intense aerial attacks by the Nazis on Birmingham so soon after the raids on Coventry, Hungary's siding with Germany, reports that England was selling additional American stocks to improve its dollar exchange, and the multiplying indications of an unsatisfactory labor condition in this country.

Yet there was a good deal in the domestic situation to encourage a brighter view. All trade analyses agree that so called "Christmas business" will be better than any Christmas season since 1929. And the fact that industry is undergoing a widespread revival under the impetus of defense expenditures is shown by the electricity output which is at an all time high. Also encouraging to business generally is the refusal of the House of Representatives by a decisive majority to vote adjournment of the Congress without day. The fact that enough Democrats joined with the solid Republican majority to prevent the adoption by the House of the adjournment resolution is taken as an augury of an increasing independence on the part of many members of the House in legislative matters.

Although Congress is not expected at the current session to enact any legislation of great importance to business, new taxes are already in the making. Just before a conference with his budget officers this week President Roosevelt had a talk with Chairman Doughton of the House Committee on Ways and Means presumably about tax legislation to be asked of the new Congress. On leaving the White House the Chairman said that a new tax bill would be introduced early next session—one which he hoped would yield enough revenue to wipe out the deficit in regular expenditures of the government. The indications are that the Administration intends to couple its tax bill with a measure to increase the statutory debt limit from $49,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000. The new taxes to be levied will not, however, be retroactive.

Records of the present rate of industrial production show they are above the levels attained in the wake of the Congressional elections of 1936. In fact these high levels four years ago caused the Government to increase the reserve requirements of the Federal Reserve member banks in August 1936, and again in March and May 1937. It was alleged that industry was engaging in unhealthy speculation in commodities and gold imports were "sterilized." Nothing of the sort has been done by the Government in recent weeks and high officials are quoted as contemplating no such curbs in the near future. Instead of imposing the restrictions resorted to in 1936 it is believed that the main objective of existing regulatory processes is to bring about an orderly expansion of production. This regulation is said to be working well in the steel industry where a steady increase in deliveries of steel for national defense purposes, is lengthening delivery dates on steel, which has been ordered for non defense purposes. As long as there is any substantial number of men out of work and plant capacity is still available it is not believed priority restraints on business will be resorted to.

Merchant Marine

Fifteen of the 65 vessels remaining in the government laid-up fleet were put on the block this week, and probably will be sold to British interests, expected to offer more for the vessels than domestic operators.

The vessels, or any of them, are offered "as is, where is" without restrictions as to use. Five—the Bellemina, Clairton, Lorain, Mercer and Winona County—are coal burners. The others—the Braddock, Cockaponset, Edgefield, Pacific Redwood, West Raritan, West Saginaw, West Totant, West Wauna, Western Ocean and Williamantic—are oil-burners. Bids will be opened 12 Dec.

The government has already sold 20 of its laid up ships to Britain, and the 15 offered this week, if all taken, will reduce the number of laid-up ships to 50, a few of which probably will also be put on the block at a later date.

In addition to its purchases from the government, Britain has bought extensively in the private American market having, as stated in this column earlier this month, bought half a million tons of ships. During this month Britain has bought the Labette, Quistconck, Jolee, Liberty Bell, West Ekonk and Oakman from Lykes; the yachts Driftwood, Asatamia and Whim, and the tug Fairport, and other applications for sale are awaiting Maritime Commission approval.

It was also learned this week that negotiations have been completed for construction of big freighters for the British in two shipyards, one on each coast. Contracts are expected to be signed this week whereby a number of ways would be allocated in each yard for the construction of British cargo ships of a standard design.

3rd CCC Group to Sea

James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, this week approved the request of the Maritime Commission for transfer on 15 Jan. 1941, of 300 additional CCC enrollees to Maritime Commission training schools.

Transfers are made on a voluntary basis and only to enrollees who have a desire to qualify for the merchant marine. The enrollees are given honorable discharge from the CCC after they pass required examinations for acceptance by the Maritime Commission.

The 15 Jan. enrollment by the Commission will be the third made of CCC youths and will bring to 1,400 the number of CCC enrollees thus far accepted for sea training. Fifty of the enrollees will be sent to the cooks and stewards school operated by the Commission at Gallops Island in Boston Harbor, 100 to the radio school at Gallops Island, and 150 to the school at St. Petersburg, Fla., for general maritime training in deck and engine room duties. The radio course will require approximately ten months and the other courses nine months. At the conclusion of the training, the men will be eligible for jobs in the merchant marine.

Construction Items

The SS President Garfield, fourth of seven C-3 passenger and cargo ships being built for American President Lines was launched 20 Nov. at Newport News SB & DD Co. The ship was sponsored by Miss Eugenia Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill of Washington, D. C., and god-child of Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, USN-Ret., Maritime Commission chairman.

On 14 Nov. the C-1 cargo ship Cape Mendocino was launched at Los Angeles and the C-2 cargo vessel Sweepstakes was launched at Tampa. On 16 Nov. the C-3 cargo Examiner was launched at Quincy and the C-3 cargo Mormacork took the water at Kearny. On 27 Nov. the C-3 combination vessel Rio Hudson will be launched at Chester; on 30 Nov. the C-1 cargo ship Cape Cleare will be launched at Seattle; on 1 Dec. the C-1 cargo Cape Neddick will be launched at Staten Island; on 7 Dec. and as yet unnamed C-1 vessel will be launched at San Francisco, and on 18 Dec. the C-1 cargo Cape Look-out will be launched at Beaumont.

Tampa Shipbuilding and Engineering Company has been reorganized as Tampa Shipbuilding Company, Inc., and will receive necessary capital to bid for additional ship contracts. The yard now has contracts for eight C-2 diesel cargo vessels, of which two have been completed.

Moore-McCormack Lines have offered $12,900 per month each to charter the Deer Lodge and West Keene for service between the east coast of the United States and the east coast of South America.

Honor Colonel Clark

To do him honor on his retirement from the office of commissioner of Public Works to become a consultant in the Budget Bureau more than 100 associates of Col. Elmer W. Clark tendered him a dinner at the Carlton Hotel on the evening of 19 Nov. last. Charles C. McCall, general counsel of the PWA, was toastmaster. One of the chief speakers was Col. Henry M. Waite, the distinguished engineer and veteran of the AEF under whose leadership as deputy Administrator of Public Works the PWA was first organized. In that work Colonel Clark was his valued assistant, as he will be again in the work of the Budget Bureau. And Colonel Waite predicted that Colonel Clark would enhance in his new position the brilliant record of service that stands to his credit in the PWA. Other speakers included John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, who is frequently mentioned as a possible successor of Miss Perkins in the Secretaryship of Labor, and Harry Slattery, administrator of Rural Electrification.

Civilian Conservation Corps

Because a large percentage of the young men in the Civilian Conservation Corps are below the age for registration under the Selective Service Act it is expected that the forthcoming budget will provide for the continuance of the Corps at approximately its present strength. Some fifteen hundred camps are now maintained and their graduates are in much better shape for service with the armed forces as they come of military age than they would have been had they been denied the training they get in the Corps.

Meantime no progress has yet been made toward providing a special course of instruction that would train mechanics and other skilled artisans for the mechanized units of the armed forces. Authority to institute this training was granted by the Byrnes amendment to the Selective Service Act but the President has not yet exercised this authority. One of the most creditable chapters in the modern annals of the Army is the distinguished service rendered by those of its officers, Regulars and Reserves, who have been detailed for duty with the CCC. Although one of four agencies assisting in the administration of the Corps, to the Army has fallen the responsibility of building and maintaining the camps, commanding the companies and serving them as quartermaster, fiscal agent, sanitary and health officer and looking out as well for the education, welfare and religious requirements of the Corps. Throughout the hours when they are not actually working on projects the men of the Corps are entrusted to the care of the Army. Originally officers of the Regular Army were detailed for duty with the Corps. Later they were relieved by Reserve Officers and since August of 1939 these officers have been employed on a civilian basis. About 15,000 officers have benefited by their training in the work of the CCC and 5,000 more are now getting the same training. Lt. Walter Killilae, CA-Res., recently described for the Cavalry Journal the advantages accruing to these officers from their experience on CCC duty. A Reserve Officer, he said, serving in the Corps "is rounding out his military skill in such a manner that he will be of invaluable service to the Army in time of national emergency."

A problem has arisen in connection with the fact that the reserve officers in command of the camps, even though on duty in a civilian status, are all on the eligible list and liable to call to active duty. Anticipating such a call, which would strip the CCC of its camp commanders, Security Administrator McNutt has appointed a committee to study and report on the situation. On this committee are: Will Alexander, chairman; Wayne Coy, James Landis, Dr. Harold Laswell, Virgil M. Simmons, and Dr. Floyd M. Reeves.

General Crane Reports

Brig. Gen. John A. Crane, USA, was welcomed at Fort Bragg, N. C., on 16 Nov. as he assumed command of the 13th Field Artillery Brigade. A detachment from Batteries D and F of the 17th Field Artillery acted as escort upon the arrival of General Crane at the post and Battery A of the 6th Field Artillery fired the salute. The 1st Battalion of the 36th Field Artillery with colors and the band of the 17th Field Artillery formed the guard of honor in front of Post Headquarters as General Crane arrived and reported to Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, post commander.

General Crane is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, the Army War College, The General Staff School, The School of the Line and the Mounted Service School. He was commissioned in the Army as a second lieutenant of Field Artillery 25 Sept. 1908, served in France with distinction during the first World War as Military Attaché at Istanbul, Turkey, and Associate Attaché at Belgrade from June, 1932 to June, 1936 and comes to Fort Bragg from his recent duty as Foreign Liaison Officer in the Military Intelligence Division of the War Department General Staff.

Organization of State Guards

Regulations governing the organization of State Guards, under the recently enacted Federal authorization, are now nearing completion by the War Department General Staff. Upon approval they will be distributed to such states as authorize the organization of units to function while the National Guard is in Federal service. Equipment, consisting of 1917 Enfield rifles and small accessories, also will be issued by the War Department.

The War Department has stated that Reserve officers and Regular Army Retired officers may be commissioned in the state guards without jeopardy to their Reserve or Retired status and a commission in such force will not interfere with their being ordered to active Federal duty under their Reserve or Retired commission. It is the policy of the War Department not to call Reserve officers or Regular Army Retired officers to active duty for service in connection with such state military organizations.

Assistant Secretary of War Patterson, speaking 18 Nov. before the annual Department Commanders and Adjutants Conference of the American Legion in Indianapolis, Ind., discussed the new units as follows:

"In the present emergency the Home Guard will perform much the same functions as were assigned it in 1917 and 1918, with one or two highly important differences. In the first place, it will be known as State Guard instead of Home Guard. The State Guard will be alert to the fact that the wars of today know no front line—that a tiny village hundreds of miles behind the theoretical front may suddenly become the scene of desperate and blazing action.

"The War Department is preparing instructional matter on this and other phases of civil defense. It is also drawing up a schedule of regulations governing the State Guard of which I am at liberty to give you a brief preview, although I hasten to add that the State Guard does not come within the purview of the office of The Assistant Secretary of War.

"States desiring to organize a State Guard are required to prepare a comprehensive program of organization and training for guard duty, handling disorderly crowds, and overcoming the light resistance of armed forces.

The attention of the State Guard will be particularly directed toward the guarding of utilities, power plants, water works, industrial plants, docks, railroad yards, air fields, and other sensitive areas. The State Guard will be formed as infantry or as military police. Tables of organization will be furnished, but as a guide only. The States will be required to submit to the War Department their organization and training program for the State Guard.

"The War Department will issue a certain amount of equipment to the States for the use of the State Guard. It will consist of 1917 Enfield rifles and small accessories. Certain other individual equipment will be available for purchase from the War Department. The equipment which the War Department furnishes will be for a force not more than one-half the strength of the National Guard of the State.

"State Guard units will be organized in the manner provided by the laws of the individual States. In States which have no State militia act or whose home guard laws, hangeovers from twenty-odd years ago, are no longer operative, new legislation will be necessary. Since most State legislatures will not meet until January, there will inevitably be some delay in the organizing of many State Guard units.

"I hope to see thousands of Legionnaires taking their places in the State Guards of their home States once these are organized. Let the authority for the maintenance of peace and order within the States lodge where it constitutionally belongs—in the Governor and his police authorities. Your readiness to serve will be an inspiring example to the young men who will thereby be released for more exacting but not necessarily more perilous duties. Most important, the actual service you render will be invaluable—it is even possible to envisage circumstances under which it would become as essential to the national security as anything you did or stood ready to do in the World War. And don't let anybody tell you you are too old. For this particular service, calling, as it will may, for the exercise of judgment, tact, and diplomacy, you are more ideally fitted than if you were young fellows in your twenties—the young fellows you were in 1918."

Ft. Knox Turkey Shoot

The annual Ft. Knox Turkey Shoot for the benefit of the Community Chest, Post School and Army Relief was held on Sunday, 17 Nov. Parents, friends and the public in general were the guests of the army personnel and participated enthusiastically in the shoot for turkeys and ducks and the many games and contests. Five hundred turkeys and five hundred ducks along with fifty money prizes were awarded to the contestants. Also two new sedan automobiles, an Oldsmobile and a Chevrolet of the latest model, together with a Crosley Station Wagon were distributed. The four Turkey Shoot restaurants served at reasonable prices huge quantities of food. As a side attraction for the many civilians, potent pieces of Armored Force equipment such as tanks, scout cars and artillery were lined up for inspection. The operators being present with their vehicles, hundreds of questions of the visitors were answered regarding the mechanics and functions of the machines.

In recent years the Ft. Knox fall Turkey Shoot has become one of the most popular benefits of this section of Kentucky. It has also come to occupy quite a unique place among the many benefits of its type throughout the Army.

Army Students Honored

Nominations are made on the basis of scholastic excellence and are considered the highest pre-graduation honor a Business School man can receive. Each Baker Scholar receives a personal letter of commendation from Dean Donham and they are his guests at a special dinner in the Faculty Club.

Undersecretary of War

Both houses of Congress this week approved a bill, requested by the Administration, authorizing the appointment of an Under Secretary of War in addition to the Assistant Secretary of War. Such action already has been taken with respect to the Navy Department.

The bill is now ready for Presidential approval except for House acceptance of a Senate amendment which sets the compensation of the Assistant Secretary of War at $10,000 a year.

The bill amends the National Defense Act by giving directly to the Secretary of War the authority over the procurement of supplies and the planning for industrial mobilization—functions which up to now have been delegated by statute to the Assistant Secretary. Under the new measure these powers and responsibilities are given to the Secretary, specifying that he may assign such duties as he wishes to either the Under Secretary or the Assistant Secretary.

The text of the measure as it passed the House follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the President of the United States is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to appoint from civil life, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, an Under Secretary in the Department of War. The Under Secretary of War shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War or required by law and shall be next in succession to the Secretary of War during his absence or disability or in the event of a temporary vacancy in that office. In prescribing the duties to be performed by the Under Secretary of War, the Secretary of War may prescribe any of the duties now prescribed by law to be performed by the Assistant Secretary of War. The compensation of the Under Secretary of War shall be at the rate of $10,000 per annum. The Assistant Secretary of War, next after the Under Secretary of War, shall hereafter succeed to the duties of the Secretary of War during his absence or disability, or in the event of a temporary vacancy in that office.

Sec. 2. That the first two paragraphs of section 5a of the National Defense Act, as amended by the act of 4 June 1920 (41 Stat. L. 764), be, and the same are hereby, amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 5a. Hereafter the Secretary of War, in addition to other duties imposed upon him by law, shall be charged with the supervision of the procurement of all military supplies and other business of the War Department pertaining thereto and the assurance of adequate provision for the mobilization of material and industrial organizations essential to wartime needs, and he may assign to the Under Secretary of War and the Assistant Secretary of War such duties in connection therewith as he may deem proper. There shall be detailed to the offices of the Secretary of War, the Under Secretary of War, and the Assistant Secretary of War from the branches engaged in procurement such numbers of officers and civilian employees as may be authorized by regulations approved by the Secretary of War.

"Chiefs of branches of the Army shall report regarding all matters of procurement direct to the Secretary of War, the Under Secretary of War, or the Assistant Secretary of War, as the Secretary of War shall have prescribed. The Secretary of War shall cause to be manufactured or produced at the Government arsenals or Government-owned factories of the United States all such supplies or articles needed by the War Department as said arsenals or factories are capable of manufacturing or producing upon an economical basis. All appropriations for manufacture of material pertaining to approved projects which are placed with arsenals, Government-owned factories, or other ordnance establishments shall remain available for such purpose until the close of the next ensuing fiscal year.

"The provisions of this act shall cease to have effect on 29 Jan. 1945, unless continued in force by a subsequent act of Congress."

In Washington it is generally understood that the post of Under Secretary will be given to Judge Robert P. Patterson, the present Assistant Secretary. There is strong likelihood that in such event the post of assistant secretary will go to Brig. Gen. Benedict Crowell, ORC, who is now acting as special consultant to the secretary.

General Riggs Dies

Funeral services have been announced for today from Emmanuel Church, Baltimore, Md., for the late Brig. Gen. Lawrason Riggs, former Brigadier-General, Commanding the Maryland National Guard, who died in that city 21 Nov. at the age of seventy-nine. The Rev. Dr. Theodore P. Ferris, rector of Emmanuel Church, will officiate, assisted by the Rev.

R. J. Gunkel, rector of the Church of Our Saviour.

Nursing Council Formed

A Nursing Council on National Defense has been organized. This Council is made up of the presidents of the three National Nursing Organizations, and representatives of the Federal Nursing Services, including the Army, Navy, Veterans' Administration, Children's Bureau, Indian Service, Public Health Service, and the Red Cross Nursing Service.

One of the first projects proposed by the Nursing Council was a national inventory of the nursing forces of the country in order that experience and qualifications of all nurses will be available when selecting personnel in the event of an emergency. Upon the request of the Council, the United States Public Health Service has agreed to serve as official sponsor of this project, and the National Nursing Organizations as the co-sponsors.

The National Nursing Organizations, through the State Associations, are to distribute schedules to all registered nurses, including those actively employed, and those who are married or retired, and to collect and to edit the schedules and return them to the Public Health Service for tabulation and analysis.

Upon completion of this survey, it is hoped that there will be available a complete roster of registered nurses in the United States with information regarding their availability for military or civilian duty. It is believed that there may be many registered nurses not now employed in nursing work who might be available in a national emergency. A census such as we have described should give this type of information.

Registered nurses who have not received a questionnaire should notify the Graduate Nurses' Association, 1746 K St., N. W. Washington, D. C., or phone National 2149.

Help to Soldiers Off Duty

Under the heading "Army Welcomes Civilian Aid to Help It Protect Its Personnel From Intemperance and Vice When Soldiers Are Absent From Posts," an announcement was issued by the War Department this week as follows:

"The Army welcomes the aid of civic organizations in helping to protect soldiers from intemperance and vice when they are away from their duty stations.

"The War Department has taken every means to protect its personnel from temptations while at military posts and camps.

"The sale of intoxicating liquors on military posts is prohibited by Army regulations which are strictly enforced. Beverages which contain 3.2 percent alcohol or less by weight are not considered intoxicants under existing laws and are therefore authorized at posts located in states or territories whose laws permit such sale within their borders, but the sale of these beverages is forbidden in posts which are located in states or territories whose laws do not permit it.

"The War Department said that the morals of the Army have always been a matter of pride to its personnel. Commissioned officers are charged with the responsibility for the men in their commands, and cases of failure on the part of the soldiers to observe military laws are promptly and justly punished. The enlisted men are encouraged to take pride in their uniforms and in the Army of which they are a part. Chaplains are on duty to give them spiritual guidance. Understanding leaders offer them advice and counsel, and medical officers guard their physical well-being.

"Healthful and wholesome entertainment is furnished at the posts and camps so as to encourage soldiers to avoid the temptations found off the Army reservations.

"In the civilian communities beyond the border of the military reservations, undesirable conditions are sometimes found which the War Department believes can be eliminated if civilians interested in the welfare of the Army will lend their aid and encouragement to their local civic organizations who are trying to supply wholesome recreation for the men during their off-duty hours.

"The Army is interested in the soldier while he is on or off a military reservation. It is interested in him at all times when he is in the military service, and looks to the civilian communities adjacent to Army posts and camps to clean up undesirable facilities for soldiers who are on pass or furlough, and to supply instead facilities wherein the men may find wholesome recreation."
